Woman Who Gets Spirit Messages by Ouija Board

Mrs. John H. Curran.

Mrs. John H. Curran, of St. Louis, recently came to New York with the announcement that she has established telegraphic communication with the spirits of the dead. Mrs. Curran, a New England girl who died about 1875, and that she is prepared to offer some of the latest news of the dead to the living. Mrs. Curran's husband, who accompanied her to New York, aids in transmitting the "messages" in long hand. Many scientific men and students of spiritualism are deeply interested in Mrs. Curran's claims.

RED CROSS SEAL WILL SELL FAST

Director Says State Will Buy More Than Its Share

"California will more than buy its share of the Red Cross Seal," declared May 12, 1919, M. Tate-Thompson, director of the bureau of tuberculosis of the California State Board of Health, today. "If the support which has been promised to the California State Tuberculosis Association and its fifty local associations is forthcoming."

"The Christmas seal idea has taken firm hold in the state and all that is needed is to give the public an opportunity to buy them and the public will buy."

Ninety-two per cent of the money raised by the sale of Red Cross Christmas seals in California is spent in California, eight per cent goes to the American Red Cross and the National Tuberculosis Association to carry on the national fight to stamp out the white plague. Of the 92 per cent devoted to work in California 75 per cent goes to meet current expenses and the balance is used in opening new fields of activity.

So well were the finances of both state and local tuberculosis associations handled during the war period, with all the added demands made in taking care of men rejected by the draft boards owing to tuberculosis, the local and state associations were not only able to meet these demands without calling for additional funds but California took first place in handling this class of cases.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 20.—The San Diego Consolidated Railway Company today was given permission by the state railroad commission to put into effect an agricultural power service schedule. A minimum charge of 312 per horsepower was provided, but.

MAKE THE SQUARE ISSUE

If, as is now threatened, the peace treaty controversy is to be deliberately prolonged, so as to throw it into the elections of 1920, there can be no question that the "irreconcilables" are right in insisting that the question come squarely on the League itself, and not, as proposed by Senator Lodge, on the details of the "reservations." A popular vote is useless, unless it is to be on the direct big question. For the American people will never think that a quibble over one wording or another of a reservation on Section X, or the question whether a Shantung protest should be in certain language or in different language, could justify holding up the world for two years. If this treaty could be ratified—and it can—by modifying these two reservations and Americanizing the preamble, then there is no possible excuse for refusing these concessions except a conviction that the whole treaty is so almost incurably bad that, even with these extreme reservations, it is just barely endurable. Besides, since it is known that, with these reservations plus the preamble requiring their acceptance by other powers, that acceptance would be refused by the powers, the reservation program constitutes a rejection program, anyway. So, if the issue must come, it might as well be made squarely. Then the Republican party, under the leadership of W. R. Hearst, will have an issue which every one will understand, and on which it ought to carry South Carolina, Mississippi, and the Tammany districts of New York City. The latter, especially, are the stoutest supporters of the Hearst variety of "Americanism."

But if this issue must wait for the vote of the people, is it not a crime against the world that we have never adopted a modern and enlightened way of taking that vote? Every other nation in the world has taken such a vote already, except those in which the opposition was too insignificant to make a vote worth while. And every vote, so far, has resulted in favor of the treaty. The peoples of the rest of the world are unanimous for it. There is no reason to doubt that the American people are of the same opinion. The only difference is that under our cumbersome governmental machinery we have no means of finding out, while the issue is still alive. Everywhere else an election can be called by the issue, on the issue, when it is an issue. With us, elections are called by the calendar, regardless of whether there is an issue or not. So on an issue submitted in the summer of 1919, and voted on in Congress November 19, 1919, we can not vote until November 19, 1920, and even then only by the election of a Congress which does not go into office until March 4, 1921, and does not meet, unless called into extra session, until December, 1921. So it takes us over two years to settle by popular vote an issue which other countries could settle in a month. And even then we are not certain to settle it. We are liable to elect a President of one party because he made a good speech or squeaked the I. W. W. and a Congress of another party for various local reasons, one member because he "damned the niggers," another because he got a postoffice and another because his opponent's wife wears the wrong hats. Then we may spend two years more finding out whether we had settled anything. Meantime the world waits. We are just beginning to find out what an irresponsible and unrepresentative mechanism of alleged popular government we have.

BING ONG TONG RESERVATIONS

Chinese leaders of San Francisco have petitioned for the incorporation of a Chinese Peace Association for the prevention of wars between the hitherto hostile tong.

It is a good idea, but we submit that before it can be ratified by the Bing Ong tong, the loyal members of that clan should demand certain reservations. They should in the first place reserve the right to except the Sam Yups and the Suey Yups from any rights under the pact, and provide that any Sam Yup or Suey Yup may be murdered by any Bing Ong, whenever the Bing Ongs think necessary. The inhibition shall apply exclusively to Sam Yups and Suey Yups, who are on no account ever to murder any Bing Ong clansmen. This reservation is to be submitted to the Sam Yups and Suey Yups for their acceptance and the ratification by the Bing Ongs is not to take effect until this acceptance is filed. Furthermore, the Bing Ongs reserve to themselves the exclusive right to determine what are their rights under the compact, and they stipulate in advance that they shall have no duties nor obligations under it. They demand, also, that they shall be exempt from the statutes of the state of California and the ordinances of the city of San Francisco, except that they shall have the right to prosecute other clansmen under these laws, and shall be guaranteed that their enemies shall always be convicted. They further stipulate that the Sam Yups and the Suey Yups shall repeal the law of California against fan-tan. With these reservations, the Bing Ong tong may ratify the treaty. For the Bing Ongs believe in peace. But it must be a peace which does not impair the integrity or dignity of the Bing Ong tong.

AMERICANS CONSERVATIVE

Nearly all the destructive radicalism in the United States is imported. The American people are conservative. Even the American Legion, composed of the young and the impulsive, most of its members poor, and many of them foreign born or the sons of foreigners, is taking the conservative side of every question. The thorough Americanization of its members overrides lines of birth and class. Their conservatism is a by-product of their patriotism. And the American people as a whole, both in state and community units, vote on the conservative side of practically every referendum election. Whatever radicals may cry, attributing conservatism to plutocrats and aristocrats, or to the still more contemptible "bourgeoisie," actual experience shows that the foundation of conservatism in America is the American democracy. Even progressives have in conduct long campaigns of education, to bring the people up to their policies, and radicals have no chance with them whatever.

On the other hand, the chief revolutionary organization in New York is the Union of Russian Workers, while the instigators of the extreme outbreaks in the Northwest are frankly Bolshevik, imported and financed from Siberia. All the ideas and most of the members of the I. W. W. are foreign. The radical faction in the labor unions is nearly all foreign, though some of its ablest leaders are Americans, affiliated to the "parlor bolshevik" type. American in blood but foreign in intellectual environment. The intellectual radicals themselves, the "intelligencia," who congregate in New York, are an essentially Eastern European institution, even in name. Even those of them who are physically native-born claim to have gone through a spiritual rebirth which is directly European. And the Socialist movement in America, both in its destructive and its constructive factions, is imported. Its aggressive class consciousness is not an American product. The economic conditions which make that consciousness possible have only recently developed in America, and the intellectual traditions in which it is formulated are not American at all. Its very vocabulary is imported. "Bourgeoisie" and "proletariat" are not American words or American ideas.

The old-fashioned Americanism of Abraham Lincoln may be out of date. There are ingenious arguments to prove it so. But, right or wrong, the American people still believe in it. There may be American reasons for revolt, but the actual revolt is imported.

UNJUST DISCRIMINATION

We are moved once more to register our annual protest against the pending examinations for plumbers' licenses. It is seriously proposed that no one shall practice plumbing in Fresno unless he knows plumbing, and that his competency shall be established by examination before a sectarian board, all of whose members but one are orthodox plumbers, and that one is an educated physician.

What chance has a graduate of the aeroplane correspondence school of plumbing before such a board? There should be a referendum to the people, on a law authorizing the aeroplumbers to license themselves, on such educational qualifications as they are able to come up to. What right have these orthodox plumbers to examine candidates on hydrostatics and sanitation, or to test their knowledge of pipes and fixtures, or their skill in installing and repairing them? The aeroplumbers have testimonials showing a lot of people who never had any orthodox plumbing in their houses, and are still alive. Is it not an interference with religious liberty to confine the practice, in Fresno, to the one sect which knows pipes, fixtures and sanitation and does its work with trained skill and in accordance with the ordinances? It is not the rights of the aeroplumbers alone that are involved. Even they are relatively materialists. Since the purpose of plumbing is to remove stench, their technique is to let the wind blow it away, or to install electric fans to help out the wind, in closed places. But there are more spiritual practitioners of the plumbing art who demonstrate that there is no such thing as stench. Stench is a sensation, not a fact. Stench is a function of the mind. And stench is a disagreeable sensation, it may exist in the mind, but not in mind. The remedy, therefore, is to raise mind to mind, by the perusal of the textbook on Spiritualized Sanitation. This proposed plumbing examination is an intrusion on the liberty of conscience of all disciples of the Spiritual Sanitarians.

If there is to be any such arbitrary requirement, we submit that there should be provision for a certificate of conscientious objection for those who do not wish to comply with it. Otherwise we shall be discriminating unjustly in favor of educated plumbers, by requiring education of their competitors. An educational qualification is undemocratic, in a community in which there are more people who do not know plumbing than there are who do know it. Let the majority rule!

SIGNIFICANT LINE UPS

The Examiner prints interviews which it extorted from several Republican leaders; one stand-pat and the rest progressive, congratulating it on its stand on the League of Nations and on the victory of its cause.

This particular list of a few names, and the much more numerous lists of many names, which have been signed to various telegrams and public statements on the two sides of this question, present an interesting study. Especially among the Progressive leaders, there is a clear division. These leaders, in their services in establishing the progressive movement, were of two sorts—those whose principal service was in the practical work of making the movement victorious, and those whose principal service was in giving to the movement the meaning which alone made its victory worth gaining. Both these services are essential, in any movement which is to accomplish anything, and there need be no carrying comparisons as to which is the more important. Most actual leaders naturally rendered both sorts of services, but in varying proportions. They naturally divide, however, into the two classes of those who formulated policies and those who "put them across." And, on this division, with only one or two rare exceptions noted, all the progressive opponents of policies are now in favor of the League of Nations, while those who did the practical fighting and organizing for those policies are divided, some on one side and some on the other. With the one or two exceptions noted, all the progressive opponents of the covenant are of the putters-across, while practically all the constructive formulators, plus a large part of the others, are on the pro-League side.

The cleavage is of course natural enough. Those whose minds naturally turn to the constructive consideration of impractical policies will quite obviously reach the same conclusion as the others of their class throughout the world. The few exceptions either happened to be of an exceptional opinion, or were overridden by practical considerations. The practical political workers, on the other hand, considering votes and victory, were of two opinions. There are two ways of looking at that question, and some of them have seen each side.

SLOGANS FROM GOV. COOLIDGE'S SPEECHES

Gov. Coolidge made comparatively few speeches during the recent campaign, but one of them contained a slogan worth remembering. "Let men in office substitute the selfish light of the limelight," "Boner omphs that 'honors be recognized.' We need more of the office desk and less of the show window in politics." "Expect to be called a demagogue, but don't be a demagogue."—Boston Post.

THE CHANGING WORLD

(Copyright, 1919, by John T. McClelland.)

Horse thieves on the western frontier were stepped in this way. Automobile thieves nowadays seem to slip through the clutches of the law.

The Louisiana lottery was expelled from the U. S. as being a bad influence. A European nation is planning to raise funds by means of a gigantic lottery.

A few years ago a "votes for women" advocate could not enter the galleries of the British house of parliament. Now it seems quite probable that a woman will win a seat in the British house of parliament.

LLOYD-GEORGE APPEALS FOR NEW WORLD CAPITAL RESERVE

On the occasion of a late visit to Sheffield, England, Premier Lloyd George delivered a most stirring address. No one realizes the necessity for concentrated effort and intensive co-operation in Great Britain today as does the premier. Productive work was his key note. The following extracts are characteristic of the premier's command of stirring diction and reveals his attitude toward industrial activities in the kingdom.

"It is not merely that we should work as we worked before the war. If we are able to face our difficulties and emerge triumphantly from the troubles of peace as we issued from the greater difficulties of the war, we must work more productively at any rate than we have ever done before. What is the situation? Our burdens are heavier than they ever were, our needs are greater, and our standards are higher. Yes, and our opportunities are vaster. That is the situation of the hour. Let me give you the verdict.

"Before the war our national debt was $250,000,000. The national debt today is nearly $3,000,000,000. Owing to the increased charges and the cost of living, other state and municipal burdens are necessarily heavier. 'Wages are paid in terms of labor, but the standard of living is higher than ever. That is a thing which is worth preserving. You cannot preserve it by decreasing wages, by decisions with labor conditions. During the war all visions of a better life, of a life of peace, of a life of abundance, have been swept away. May they never enter the portals of this country.

"There is the fear of pre-war conditions. There is only one way out of it—your own production. Increase the national income, and you can only do that by largely increasing the national production. That is, it is not enough that production should be equal to the cost of production; you must increase it. That is the key to success.

DOWN ON YOUR LUCK

Were you ever, old fellow, just down on your luck. When everything just went wrong. When the sweetest things of a life were lost. Were as harsh as a Chinese gong.

When the morning all of a sudden dark. Went through you like a pain. When the sun was warm and the sky was clear. But it felt to you like rain.

When flowers around were all blooming. But to you had a thistle's sting. And the silvery moon in the pool old sky. Was to you a meaningless thing.

If you have, I'll tell you, old fellow, You're built in a playful mood— You'd better get rid of your soul— And take it deep at your soul—

You'd better get out in the open— Get kissed by the light and the dark. If not, you'll drop out of the march.

Fresno's Yesterdays

Taken From the Files of the FRESNO REPUBLICAN

Forty Years Ago

Last Sunday the Central baseball club of Fresno played the Yosemite club of Modesto at the latter place. The game was called at 1 o'clock and lasted for about four hours, and was a very interesting one. The Yosemite team were very fast, and were not matched for their more experienced adversaries. They have fine material for a ball club, being resourceful, vigilant and tough. Though on the losing side, they played gallantly on to the end and did themselves much credit. The Central club is constantly improving, and soon will be a very fine team. The game was called at 1 o'clock and lasted for about four hours, and was a very interesting one. ### FIND A LOST COLOMBIAN Redevelopment of one of the best emerald mines in Colombia, South America, where flawless gems of a rich and varied nature, valued at high prices, are found, has been started by the Colombian government.

This mine is about 100 miles north-east from Bogota, capital of Colombia, one of the most fertile mountain regions in South America. It was worked long ago by the Indians and some of the adventures from Spain, who died without revealing the secret.

The rediscovered mine is known as the "El Estrella" mine, and is situated in a mountain range near Bogota, where scores have searched for its location.

News that the El Estrella had been found and a search of mines had been known when stock in it became attainable on Wall Street after months of almost every day. A few days ago the stock was inactive at $10 a share. Now these said to be on the inside were talking about $100 and $200 a share in their stock.

The mine is said to hold upward of 100,000 tons of ore. A small mountain river carries clean water to the mine, and the most flawless white rock ever seen, in which are small "boulders," each containing at least one emerald of large size, which have been found in the mine.

So we went to the address Jones gave us and bought a device like this.

For a time everything worked beautifully. The furnace immediately took a shine to the monitor we had installed and instantly carried out its highest instructions.

If we wanted the house heated to twenty degrees we set the monitor on a little dial to that figure. Within a few minutes the thermometer in every room registered seventy degrees. It was wonderful.

Then the cold spell came along. That night, sitting fast in the air I set the monitor at 65, and retired, perfectly confident that all would be well.

Along about three in the morning I awoke. Is your dog barking? No! Is your wife bawling? No! Is your baby crying? No! Is your cat meowing? No! Is your dog barking? No! Is your wife bawling? No! Is your baby crying? No! Is your cat meowing? No!

Not in the least. The great trouble with this is that I haven't known anything. "What sort of a device is that?" I don't know. It doesn't trouble me at all.—Exchange.

Twa Mouthfu's o' Naething

November's here
And far-out and awa'
In mountain places,
Where tourists wandered
In and out and roundabout,
There's loneliness.
The Valley o' Yosemite
Seems fir-tae lie
In the hush o' death—
High rocky cliffs
Catch the warm echoes
O' the human voice
And snither them
Against their granite bosoms,
The icy hand o' Winter,
On the heights abut,
Hes dammed the flood
That poured
Its massive volume
Through giant niche,
And the tempestuous winds
That stormed
Frae the wecht o' waters
That foamed the falls
O' famed Yosemite
Are calm and still;
The boom'n' roar
That fills the valley
When the waters fall
Is heard nae mair:
Among the Happy Isles
Where happy waters
Tossed and played
In their times
In the waste o' boulders
There's naething left
But just a soot
O' gurglin' quiet:
The shouts o' bairnies
And the gied voices
O' their elders
Raised in pleased surprise
And the tunefu' songs
O' little birds
And even the hum o' bees
Hae a' passed awa'
Wi' the season o' Summer,
And the auld break
In the monotony o' silence
That shrouds the valley

More Truth Than Poetry

By James J. Montague

TENDING THE FURNACE BY PROXY

By JAMES J. MONTAGUE
Coming out on the 5:15, Jones got outstayed about his new mechanical junior.

"All you gotta do," said Jones, "is to clamp her on the side of the furnace, and she'll keep the temperature down even at whatever you want, whether it's colder or the north side of an iceberg or a regular summer's day. She tends to that furnace as if it was her trained nurse, day and night. A college professor hasn't got any more specialized intelligence than this little machine."

"Does it put the coal in the furnace for you?"
"No, but it does pretty near everything else. And a man who's too lazy to swing a few shovels of coal every night and morning oughtn't to have a home at all; he ought to be a striking miner."

The trouble with our furnace was an excess of temperance. It was a headstrong, self-willed furnace, which had its own ideas about heat and ventilation, and carried them out with a fine contempt for the desires of the family.

Its conduct in the past had led to more or less bitter discussions about how to manage it. When I sought to make it listen to reason the Lady of the House, coldly disapproved of my methods. When she applied to it her theories of engineering I stood by and pointed out her mistakes. This did not lead to that unity of thought and purpose which ought to be the basis of a household of every American home.

It occurred to me that putting the furnace in charge of this mechanical monitor would be an excellent plan, and when the dog had disappeared, I timed and dropped while my daughter was in the bath, and I hurried to the furnace, and gave him into the hands of a veterinary, and our anxiety fell from us as a garment. Incidentally the dog was made whole.

If the plan would work with a dog, why not with a furnace? Clearly it would be better for the furnace to have one master than two, and a machine, which could have no bias or prejudices, which was quite unlikely to lose its temper, however the furnace behaved, seemed its ideal custodian.

So we went to the address Jones gave us and bought a device like this.

For a time everything worked beautifully. The furnace immediately took a shine to the monitor we had installed and instantly carried out its highest instructions.

If we wanted the house heated to twenty degrees we set the monitor on a little dial to that figure. Within a few minutes the thermometer in every room registered seventy degrees. It was wonderful.

Then the cold spell came along. That night, sitting fast in the air I set the monitor at 65, and retired, perfectly confident that all would be well.

Fresno Musical Club Will Foster Municipal Orchestra

Assembling a group of the finest local artists in a symphony orchestra, the Fresno Musical Club will present on Sunday afternoon, November 30, at the White Theatre, the first of a series of four free concerts as the club gift to the public of Fresno.

Earl Towner will conduct the orchestra, the participants being members of the Musical Club, augmented by well-known musicians of the city. The club has long felt the popular demand for music on Sunday evenings, as exemplified by the famous "Half-hours of Music," which have been for so many years a successful Sunday feature of the famous Greek Theatre in Berkeley.

The one experimental concert given last year proved such a great success that the club has been encouraged to go on with the work this year in a more pretentious way. Heroic attempts which have been made in the past to form a permanent Fresno Symphony orchestra seemed to have failed because the great love for this highest form of musical expression has been confined to a small circle of musical enthusiasts. The club hopes by giving concerts of an educational character, not only to bring before the public the unusual talents of its active members, but to present rare compositions from the great masters which have not heretofore been performed in Fresno.

A feature of the initial concert will be the concerto in "A Minor" written for piano and orchestra by Robert Schumann, played by Mrs. Romayne Hunkins. Fresno's gifted pianist who is considered at her best in ensemble work.

Suggest New Street Improvement Work

Authorizing the county of Fresno to construct a public highway crossing over the tracks of the Southern Pacific on Main street, in Fresno City, the Railroad Commission directed the closing of the crossing on Main avenue. Commenting on the crossing situation developed by the supervisors' petition the commission says:

"In the near future Fresno county intends to pave Main and Main avenues as a part of a county system of highways. It would appear to be the better policy to pave the roads in the vicinity of Fresno City as will be the most convenient to the public and the local people. The engineering department of the commission, which has given this matter considerable thought, recommends that Main avenue be paved to Main street, that Main street be paved west as far as Main avenue, and that either Main street or Main avenue be paved from this point."

HIS MARKSMANSHIP:
"How did Gabe Giggery do at the target shoot?" asked a neighbor.
"First prize," replied Guy Johnson of Tumpus Ridge, Ark., "considering that he shot too high and too low and too far on both sides."—Kansas City Star.

Church Conference Will Be Held Soon

Fresno and all sections of the state of California will be represented by delegates at the quadrennial session of the Pacific Union Conference of Seventh-Day Adventists, the date of which has just been fixed by the union conference executive committee. In session here, as February 12 to 22, 1920, Sacramento and Glendale have been suggested as possible meeting places for the convention. Among the officers of the church from Central California who will attend are: H. H. Shaw and W. F. Field, president and secretary respectively, of the Central California Conference of the Adventists. Delegates also will be present from Nevada, Arizona, Utah and Western Colorado.

THE LABORING MAN:
Alas! mud, flame, belching fumes
And rumbling, tireless wheels
Or deep in earth's recesses
When daylight never reaches
Far in some wind swept forest
Or braving fierce sun's tan,
Quick to the call of duty,
He stands—the laboring man!

What wondrous wealth of power
God holds within his hand—
The life of brilliant cities,
The trade of every land!
Dustflies away before him,
Monarchs he dares to scorn;
Greatest of mighty rulers
Lay low—the laboring man!

Unceasingly, round about him,
Like wolves about the fold,
Hover the agitators,
Screaming wild views they hold—
Bolshevism, Bismarck, lunacy,
Robbing the ruler of Law,
Hoping to use his gloves!

Rev. H. Hartunian and Wife Celebrate Their Golden Wedding

Rev. and Mrs. H. Hartunian, who celebrated their golden wedding anniversary.

Last night in the presence of more than sixty friends and relatives Rev. H. Hartunian and wife celebrated their golden wedding at the home of their son, S. Hartunian.

Rev. Hartunian was born in 1824 in the village of Chavooran, Khanoos Armenia. He was a descendant of the early "Pioneer" religion, which was from the origin of the Protestant faith and from which some religious authorities claim Martin Luther got his ideas.

In 1859 his father sent him to Fresno to a newly established American Mission Theological school to become a minister of the gospel. After remaining there a year he was married and continued his schooling five years more. After graduating he went to Pakirish, Kenya, where he had a church built and preached there, and was ordained in 1882, on May 10, by Dr. Robert Chambers, where he stayed for twenty years. He also preached at other places at various times.

He did not preach to Armenians alone, but to Turks, and because he converted a Turk to Christianity, the Turks became his enemy, and at the suggestion of Dr. Robert Chambers, he came to America in 1902 and established his home in Fresno, where he now resides.

A FOG PICTURE
The fog was dense and rusty gray,
Like wall of gauze o'er Nature's face;
A chill of gloom precluded the day,
There came no warmth from any place.
The train crept from the station shed:
As something slinks away to hide;
It was as though all cheer had fled,
And joy itself had sadly died.

Beyond, out through the valley land,
The lagging train its course pursued;
The feeble hills the course close-spun,
Draped in the mist that would intrude.
It was as though God had no will
To show His hand—weak certain,
Display His paintings on the hill,
Nor stubble fields all yellow, bare.

Nor would He flout the woods full dressed
In gold and red of autumn gown;
No beauty all His world possessed
When fog-ray muffle settled down:
The cold trees stood with shivering links
The farmhouse with the landscape linked
Was but a phantom made of rim
With window eyes that never winked.

And then, as though He sensed the fall
That had been thrown on everyone,
When melancholy gray must fall,
Obscuring cheery rays of sun,
He drew, as on a canvas screen,
Beneath an artist's skillful brush,
In silhouette, a marvelous scene,
That brought upon my soul a hush:

Out, in the fog a brown hill rose,
Round as a bowl and smooth of curve;
A furrow in his loose-hung clothes
Grasped his crude plow, with lurch and swerve;
His horses outlined 'gainst the gray,
With nodding heads and plodding feet.
In practiced fashion picked their way,
The furrow's end at last to meet.

Oh, many a year may run its length,
And point its beauties 'long the way,
But still I'll see the shapely strength
Of silhouette against the gray;
Rare artists' work may claim my gaze,
Show "atmosphere" of wondrous skill;
Yet shall I glimpse through ash-gray haze
A plowman outlined on the hill—
By Grace E. Hall, in Portland Oregonian.

Am I upon a glass a warm breath blown,
Or on a fallow field a seed wind-sown—
The glass the clearer when the breath hath passed,
The field the clearer when the seed not cast?
When I have crept once this green-turfed round,
Am I for naught beyond the graveyard bound?
Is naught the richer for my spirit held,
Save a poor finger pinch of covered mold?

When my warm lips their final words
And deep-toned bells convey that I am dead,
Shall my full life be reckoned up in this—
A wall, a laugh, a sigh, a kiss,
Such propheticies I scorn, inspired to fear,
"The End" as entrance on a nobler race,
And proudly hold my small acquisitions here,
As true equipment for that further sphere.

SOME EVICTIONS ON THE STANISLAUS

Where the North Fork of the Stanislaus River begins to lose its youthful grace, vigor and agility, and broadens more maturely into the plain, there is a promontory which at certain high stages of water lies like a small island in the stream. To the strongly marked hermits of Sierran landscape it contrasts a singular, pastoral calm. White and gray houses from the orchards, rocks and feathery alders trail their garments in its slow current, and between the woodland openings there are glimpses of vivid velvet meadow, even at times when the wild oats and "wire-grasses" of the plains are already yellowing. The placid river, restrained at this point by minuscule sluices or will drift, runs clear under its contemplative shadows. Originally the camping ground of a fugitive Chief, it passed from his tenancy with the American rifle bullet that terminated his career.

The pioneer who thus succeeded to its attractive calm gave way in turn to a well directed school from the revolver of a quanta prospector, equally impressed

RULES GIVEN FOR YANK XMAS MAIL

Holiday Gifts To Meet
With Special Care,
Says U. S.

Parents and friends are assured that Christmas packages for soldiers serving overseas will receive the highest consideration and speed in transmittal, according to information received by the United States Army recruiting headquarters at 600 West street, San Francisco, from the war department yesterday.

Persons sending packages are requested to comply with the following regulations, which make for the uniformity of packages and to the packing and addressing, and which will greatly facilitate their proper distribution when they arrive at their destination:

(a) Christmas parcels are sent by parcels post, they must conform to the postal regulations, and in addition, containing candy and tobacco must be enclosed in this or light wooden boxes.

(b) All boxes shipped by express or mail should be limited to seven (7) pounds in weight and not exceed twelve inches length and six inches width. No perishable food products other than enclosed in cans should be packed in any such shipments.

(c) Mail and express matter should be addressed as now prescribed by postal regulations, that is, plainly marked with name, rank and organization of the person to whom consigned, and business address should be marked "Christmas Box" and should be sent care of the Commanding General, Port of Embarkation, Hoboken, N. J.

Parcels should arrive at the Port of Embarkation, Hoboken, N. J., not later than December 8, 1919.

Attention is called to the fact that Christmas fund drives are now being conducted by a number of San Francisco newspapers. The money collected in the movement will be used for the purchase of luxuries not usually had by soldiers in the field. Packages cash also be sent to "An American Soldier, Sailor or Marine."

Regulations for the shipment of Christmas packages to the Hawaiian Islands, Philippines, Islands and Sibet are the same as those for England, France and Germany, except that the weight of packages should be limited to twenty (20) pounds in weight and "measurements" not more than two (2) cubic feet in volume.

The Family Album

We know him about town, now as a "Banker Clark," but those of his older acquaintances know that he learned and extended his A. B. The accompanying illustration shows him at about the sweet sixteen period, when his home was in Modesto.

from home, therefore care should be taken that only useful permanent articles and plenty of cigarettes be sent. Photographs of various members of the family, especially of "dad" and "mother," are the most welcome gifts a soldier can get, but they should be sent in soft paper so they can be carried in the shirt or blouse pocket. Chocolate creams and caramels are the best bet for candy. Cigarettes should be sent by the box, with a moist blotter enclosed, so they will be fresh when they arrive at "Budd's" camp. Fruit cake and cookies such as "rocks" are also "persons grala."

Chief Trux accepted the gift in the spirit in which it was presented and expressed himself as greatly pleased that his work as a police officer had met with the approval of those who made the presentation.

HOSPITAL DRIVES WILL COST $6000

Engineer Submits Estimates on Cost of Paving

Estimates on the proposed improvement of the county hospital grounds through the paving of the driveway, suggested at the last meeting of the board of supervisors, have been prepared by Engineer Charles J. Jones. He figures the cost roughly at from $5000 to $6000.

According to the engineer $5000 square feet of pavement will be required to cover the driveway, an item that will cost, he estimates, $5,000. The installation of a concrete curb at the edges will cost $1,000 per foot or an additional item of $2,000.

He suggests a 4 inch bitumastic pavement with a warrentine surface, an ideal type of pavement but recommends asphalt 11 on the ground of coat when the comparatively light travel over the drives is taken into consideration. This class of construction, the report says, will cost approximately 20 cents a square foot.

From the twin viewpoint of economy and reasonable efficiency the engineer recommends a roadway composed of a 4 inch layer of crushed rock or gravel, compacted by rolling, with a one inch asphalt concrete top. This, he says, will cost about 10 cents a square foot.

NOVEL SIGNS WILL MARK COUNTY LINE

To Be Placed at Each End State Highway
in County

Trans-county motorists, whether tourists or habitual users of the 33 miles of state highway through Fresno County, are to be given a new and departing "thought" as they enter and leave this county.

The idea of marking county boundaries on the highway by appropriate road signs is not particularly new, but the manner in which the idea was combined in this case, so as to give it official color is unique. H. E. Patterson, Secretary of the Fresno County Chamber of Commerce is responsible. As a result entering and departing signs are to be placed immediately on the Fresno county line.

The signs are of baked enamel on metal in the official colors of the California State Automobile Association—blue on yellow. The name of the California State Automobile Association also appears on the sign giving it the official look so greatly desired. The signs will be placed back to back and anchored by two inch steel pipe set in concrete. The sign is water proof and will stand indefinitely.

The entrance sign reads "Welcome to Fresno County. World's greatest Producer of Raisins, Peaches and Figs." On leaving the county the motorists will read "You Are Now Leaving Fresno County, Farewell. We Will Welcome You Again."

It has been estimated that a large number of chamber of commerce and other civic organizations which are not read by the tourists, who are only interested in following the official markings erected by the State Automobile Association, in the past Fresno County has maintained such signs. Another bad feature was that these signs needed yearly repainting and painting to catch the eye of

To Form Optometry Bureau at University

Dr. J. M. Crawford has just returned to Fresno having attended a meeting at the University of California with officials and optometrists from San Diego, Los Angeles, San Jose, Fresno, San Francisco, Berkeley and Oakland when the matter of establishing a department of optometry in the college when the understanding was reached that it would be started at the opening of the next school year. A joint committee of three professors and three optometrists was appointed to form the curriculum.

Dr. Crawford stated yesterday that this matter has been under advisement at the University for several years. A Columbia university and the state universities of Wisconsin and Ohio have already established such bureaus of optometry.

It was definitely decided that there would be two years of academic work and one year of practical optometry including clinic.

every motorist. To carry a brief lasting impression to the motorists; to obtain a sign that is both attractive and durable was sought by the Chamber of Commerce. It is believed that the sign now procured answers all of these requirements.

Cremation is an ancient custom modernized

IN ANCIENT times the bodies of kings were cremated on elaborate funeral pyres as an evidence of high honor.

The expense and inconvenience of this method forced the multitude to bury their dead in the ground.

Modern science has made cremation the most economical, sanitary and convenient method of disposing of the dead.

COLORADO COAL STRIKE IS OFF

Shortage in Chicago Region; Increasing Production, Virginia

DENVER, Colo., Nov. 21.—Colorado's second coal strike has been averted. Telegraphic messages sent today cancelled orders for a strike of 8,500 miners, called for midnight tonight.

Reports from the coal fields indicated that the order cancelling the strike would be obeyed. A threatened coal famine in many cities is relieved by cancellation of the order.

Leaving the grievances of the miners—alleged discrimination in the employment of striking men—in the hands of H. D. Tedrow, United States district attorney, President George O. Johnson today telegraphed local unions that the strike order was cancelled in compliance with a restraining order issued by the district court late yesterday.

In the meantime, attorneys for the United Mine Workers will seek a test on the constitutionality of the state industrial law requiring thirty days' notice of a strike.

"Every man will stay on the job if the order reaches them in time," the strike is definitely off, and we are relying on District Attorney Tedrow to see that both sides get a square deal," was Johnson's statement.

Tedrow, with whom Johnson conferred last night before issuing his order to call off the strike, said both sides would be treated impartially, and that justice would be done.

Situation Good
With the strike order cancelled the coal situation in Colorado, which was too good to be true, according to George Williams, chairman of the local committee on distribution for the railroad administration.

"Demand from regional headquarters in Chicago call for larger and wider distribution of coal mined here," he said. "We are doing everything in our power to serve Denver and other cities in the state, and to make it possible at present to meet all the requirements for shipment, we are endeavoring to supply the actual needs."

The mines of the Colorado Fuel and Iron Company, which are producing an output of about 10,000 tons, according to officials, while it is about 600 tons greater than the average output for October.

Increasing Production
CHARLESTON, W. Va., Nov. 21.—Production in the New River district is increasing, according to reports of coal loadings received here today from the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad Company, for Thursday. They report there were 19,744 tons loaded yesterday, against 19,051 for Wednesday. This includes all but six million in the New River district.

Thursday's production was 85 per cent of normal, according to figures sent out at the office of the New River Coal Operators' Association.

Coal loading reports from the mines in the Chesapeake and Ohio district of Kanawha district, indicated an output of 25,550 tons Thursday, against 24,450 tons, or 13 per cent normal.

Ninety-eight per cent of the mines of the Kanawha district are operating, according to William Peters, district vice-president of the United Mine Workers. All these mines are not operating with a full force. Mr. Peters said, but by far the majority of the miners are working. Mines which have been shut in the Kanawha district, in the county, have agreed to go back to work Monday.

Shut Downs, Middle West
CHICAGO, Nov. 21.—Industry in the middle west today found itself in a critical condition, with the shutdown of its power plants, as a result of the coal shortage due to the miners' strike.

While the fuel administration had ordered an embargo on export of hard coal except to Canada, today, and miners' leaders and operators were considering similar proposals at Washington, an announcement was made by the Illinois manufacturing association that seven large industries would be forced to suspend operations indefinitely.

Many other plants may be forced to shut down or greatly reduce their operations at the end of another week of non-production of coal. It was said at the association offices.

Coal from the east began arriving today for distribution in the middle central and northwestern states. T. W. Freator of the fuel committee reported the arrival of 173,500 tons of coal which he said would be released only to public utilities and independent industries and emergencies to homes.

Italians Elect Socialist Member

ROME, Thursday, Nov. 21.—Signor Milano, a Socialist, has been elected to the chamber of deputies from both Naples and Turin. At the beginning of the war he went to Switzerland. He is alleged to evade service in the army. He was later expelled from Switzerland and went to Germany. During his absence an Italian military court condemned him to a shot for desertion and the question now arises whether he can be arrested or enjoys parliamentary immunity.

ASK RESIGNATION OF LEGION OFFICIAL

Score Vive President for Officiating at De Valera Meeting

SAN DIEGO, Nov. 21.—As a consequence of the visit here of Eamon De Valera, "president of the Irish Republic," the executive board of the local post of the American Legion tonight passed a resolution asking the resignation of the vice-chairman, J. J. Kelley, who acted as chairman of a meeting addressed by De Valera in a local theater, and also as president of a reception to De Valera.

The resolution follows: "In view of the very serious and embarrassing position in which the San Diego post, American Legion, has been placed by the action of acting chairman E. J. Kelley on November 19 and 20, in connection with the visit of Eamon De Valera to San Diego, that it be the sense of this committee that Mr. Kelley should be requested to resign as vice-chairman and acting chairman of this post."

Kelley, who served as a captain in the recent war, spoke at the meeting, defending his act in taking part last evening in a reception to De Valera and in appearing as chairman of the De Valera meeting today. He said he had not done so in his official capacity.

The question of the resignation will come before a special meeting of the post tonight. It is said, probably will be called within a few days. De Valera spoke to a large audience at noon today. He left soon after his address for Los Angeles.

Leake, vice-president of the non-partisan league, filed an application in the state supreme court today asking an alternative of prohibition and a temporary injunction to restrain district judge W. L. Suesse from attempting to enforce his order demanding that the state return the seized lights coal mines to their owners.

Governor Frazer, who issued the order taking over the mines, is not in the city. Leake, acting as attorney for the governor, asks a writ directing Judge Suesse to appear before the supreme court to show cause why he should not be permanently restrained from interference with the state operation of the mines.

DOUGLAS, Arizona, Nov. 21.—Every town of the Mesquima district, Mexico, will be protected from Yegri raids by sentinels and militia, according to announcement tonight by D. Durazo, President of the Mesquima district, and Jesus Valencio, brother of the president of the Mesquima district, who were on their way home from Hermosillo, where they obtained promise from Governor Dela Huerta of 100 rifles and 20,000 rounds of ammunition for each village.

Valencio was one of forty hostages held by the Yaquis in a recent raid. Poverty must be a crime at least, it is punishable by hard labor.

U. S. WATCHES ITALIAN EVENTS

Embassy at Rome Sifting News on Adriatic Problem

ROME, Nov. 21.—The American embassy here is carefully watching the situation in Italy, which it is asserted may develop rapidly from one hour to another as regards both Italy and the Adriatic coast.

Peter A. Jay, American charge d'affaires, with the entire personnel of the embassy, including Brig. General Eben M. Johnson, was engaged throughout Thursday night sifting from reports received dispatches to the state department at Washington and the American delegation in Paris.

There has been nothing in previous dispatches recently to indicate a serious situation developing in Italy. Mr. Jay is being aided in his task by personal and cordial intercourse with President Wilson and Count Carlo Sforza, under secretary for foreign affairs.

Mr. Jay told the Associated Press today he believed that the Italian government was doing all that was humanly possible and straining every nerve to prevent the trouble, both at home and on the Adriatic coast, which might arise, which would tend to hamper its power to control and to which it hardly could be considered responsible. The charge added that President Wilson was working most strenuously to insure order, which he certainly would be able to maintain up to the time of reopening of parliament.

So far as could be learned here tonight the state department had not been advised of any developments in the Italian situation that would have required unusual activity on the part of the American embassy staff, as related in a Rome dispatch. It was pointed out, however, that the department consistently has followed its announced course of allowing the supreme council at Paris to settle the Italian and Adriatic coast disputes. Assistant Secretary John W. Weeks is in charge of the American end of the negotiations and will be notified first of any change in the situation.

In an authoritative quarter, better known to the public, it was said that the entire staff of the supreme council's decision on the Italian boundary question was unanimous and that possibly Mr. Park had called on the American embassy for additional information on the matter at issue.

Californian Held for Killing Soldier

PHOENIX, Ariz., Nov. 21.—Nicholas Martin, former United States soldier and a resident of Yuma, Cal., was today bound over without bail to await trial in the superior court on a charge of murder in connection with the killing of Arthur Reston, a Canadian soldier, last October near Nogales, Ariz.

What's Happening to the Navy
The United States navy is being maintained or is it to be allowed to disintegrate? This question would have been asked a year ago when the navy was adding fresh laurels to its glorious record, but it is pretty well settled that the navy is being maintained and the brand new ships are being added to the fleet.

Mr. Jay told the Associated Press today he believed that the Italian government was doing all that was humanly possible and straining every nerve to prevent the trouble, both at home and on the Adriatic coast, which might arise, which would tend to hamper its power to control and to which it hardly could be considered responsible. ## Warn Typo Unions Against Seceders

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—All trade unions here were warned today by the Allied Printing Trades Council of Greater New York to disregard plans for financial or moral aid from local printing unions which have "seceded" from their international organization.

A letter signed by officials of the council alleged "their purpose is to raise sufficient money to continue the secession movement" and eventually wreck the American Federation of Labor.

The summer palace of former Czar Nicholas at Livadia is intact, although the nearby town of Yalta was badly demolished. The great white stone structure is furnished as it was when the former Czar last visited it four years ago. Only the pictures have been removed to safety. ## ARREST THREE IN MURDER CASE

Suspects Held for Slay-ing Rancher Near
Portland

PORTLAND, Ore., Nov. 22.—Three men alleged by the police to have murdered Justice N. Burgess, state highway commissioner, and Geo. E. Perlinger, wealthy Unadilla county rancher, during a holiday of the Clatsop-Tillamook fair here late Friday night, were placed in city prison late today. The men are James Ogle, said to be a former convict; Walter Banister, and David Smith.

Several other persons found in the house where the three were arrested, just across the Willamette from the scene of last night's murder and robbery, are being held by the police pending further investigation.

Ogle is said by the police to have made a complete statement concerning the slaying.

Much of the jewelry stolen from Taven patrons is said to have been recovered. At the house where the men were hiding, the police say they discovered two illicit stills in operation.

Criticizes Flat Rate Price Put on Sugar

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—The government's announced intention of fixing a flat general price of 12 cents a pound for sugar was criticized today by Geo. A. Zahrick, chairman of the sugar equalization board, who said that without such action reduction in the price of sugar might be expected.

Establishment of a flat rate, he said, would operate to raise the price of the all best sugar produced in this country, most of which can be manufactured on a 10% or even a 15% profit.

MOONLIGHT MADNESS

Well, what's the matter with the girls—there's a full moon just now, and somebody started a new love song? It isn't strange, there are no liars or violators, and even the roses have run into the green-house for shelter—what can be wrong with the scheme of things?

All the girls are writing letters to tell how deeply, desperately, madly, passionately and blindly they love some poor, blind, deaf and dumb, unsuspecting man.

When I read such a letter I always wonder not so much how the girl who writes them looks, but how the man with whom she is so frantically in love looks.

Is he handsome, brilliant, fascinating, endowed with some mysterious claim?

Not always.

A nice little girl at a summer resort sat on the rocks with me one night when the moon was at the full, and the waves at our feet were saying "Kiss me! Kiss me!" over and over in the never-ending fashion of waves the world around, and she told me that she was the victim of a husband's passion.

She is a rich man's daughter, gentle, sweet, and not particularly pretty. She knows lots of men in her own circle, but, oh, there was one—just one—and for him alone she lived and moved, and breathed and had her being.

She had never spoken to him, really—that is to say, not about anything in particular—but, oh, his eyes, and, oh, his brow, and, oh, the melan-choly music of his voice!

A "Hopeless Passion."

She wouldn't tell me who he was for a long time. But at last I was convinced that he was a shoe clerk, and one day when I was in the shop where he worked I saw him—a funny little man with big eyes and a black forehead, and no chin to speak of.

I thought as he climbed the ladder to get down a pair of shoes for a customer that he was a little knock-kneed, but what is that in the eyes of true love?

He was waiting on rather a pretty little widow, and you should have seen those eyes of his when told a pair of dancing pumps on the widow's plump and pleasing foot.

The little girl was in love with him that summer, married the banker's son a year after. I suppose she has forgotten that she ever even thought of anybody else.

"HEARTBROKEN'S" LETTER.

Here's a letter that started me on all these musings:

Dear Winifred Black:

I am 25 years old and recently have been going about with a man whom I have learned to love more than myself. I may also say he is the only man that has ever been in my life whom I have cared about. He has given me to understand that he cares for me as a friend, nothing more. My heart is broken.

When I am with this man I am so happy, but after he has gone I am so miserable. I cannot attend to my work properly, for he is ever in my thoughts, and I know I can never be happy if I let him go out of my life.

Sometimes I think of death in preference to my life as it is, but when I see him the world changes for a little while and I go on living only for the next time that I shall see him.

This man, of course, does not know of my feeling for him, but sometimes I am tempted to pour out my love to him. Do you suppose I can ever make his friendship for me turn to love? Don't tell me, dear Winifred Black, for I can't live to me is nothing without him!

HEARTBROKEN.

Her heart is broken—don't laugh, she really thinks it is.

She can't work and she can't eat, and she can't sleep. It makes you think of the old Scotch song:

"Ah, ah, love is but a quarrel, it will turn a poor body game about his business."

Well, little girl, we can all sympathize with you, anyhow, no matter how wise we are.

In the moon, three-oh, ten! the moon too perfectly beautiful for anything!

CHECK UP ON Y DRIVE TODAY

Mass Meeting Will Decide Plans for Future

Y. W. Housing Needs
Are Becoming Urgent

There will be a mass meeting this afternoon at 2 o'clock for a final checking of the Y. M. and Y. W. C. A. building fund drive pledge valuations. Those to attend are the executive committee, the "American" and "National" team captains, and all of the 250 pledge holders. The meeting will be held in the Chamber of Commerce building.

Reports 100 Per Cent
In all probability the reports made today will show a practically 100 per cent valuation. Many of the workers have already handed in their cards to the campaign headquarters, and in every case states George A. O'Brien, Y. M. C. A. secretary, the pledge has been endorsed. Further, he shows by the cards now on hand that there have been a number of voluntary increases in the amounts donated, while others have agreed to double and triple their contributions if it becomes necessary.

Must Raise $150,000
"The big job is over. We have raised $100,000 of the $150,000 needed, and all that remains ahead is the work of raising the remaining $50,000," states one of the leading campaign officials. Concerning the means to be used to obtain this sum, he asserts: "It will be put before the workers tomorrow for them to decide the best and the quickest method to raise this sum. From this statement made by the executive committee, I believe that it will be decided to try to get a fair of it through taking advantage of the pledge already offered to increase their donations. Other men who have not already pledged to give more, will be requested to do so. Then what remains will probably be obtained through small cash donations, and new installment pledges."

Y. W. C. A. Need Urgent
The need of a new building for the Y. W. C. A. is pointed out by Miss Maude Wolff, general secretary. In regard to this she states: "If people in Fresno know of the actual housing conditions which we have to contend with, they would not hesitate to subscribe twice the sum we request. We turn down on an average of ten or twelve girls a day, some of whom are strangers, and all of whom come here with the intention of staying at the Y. W. There have been several cases of girls coming to us for rooms and being turned away because of the crowded conditions, and though there may still be times when we cannot take care of all who wish accommodations, we will at least not be forced to turn girls from surrounding towns to come here from surrounding towns to go to school."

Teachers' Union to Have Open Meeting
Rev. Charles Tenen of Sacramento will address a meeting at the high school auditorium on Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock, under the auspices of the Fresno high and elementary teachers' unions. The meeting is open to the public.

SOPHOMORES GIVE COUNTRY FAIR
The sophomore of the Fresno high school gave a unique entertainment last evening at the high school to represent a regular country fair. Side shows of various sorts were provided, and the program arranged by the committee with several numbers, interspersed the events of the evening. Dancing followed. Alfred Serra was chairman of the entertainment.

NEED OF GOOD ENGLISH GROWING AS WORLD TURNS TO LANGUAGE

By HARVEY M. WATTS.

Despite what Tully said in praising the philosophy of the Italian dictionary of his time, which has just come the greatest English dictionary in the history of the language, it is not given to the world to think of the language as a mere tool for thought, and from the earliest days men have sought much time and gone to extraordinary lengths to search for and pick out the precise and suitable word, the "worded word," in order to convey the exact shade of meaning, the very thought you have in your mind, to another in a manner which will prevent any misconception or misunderstanding of the idea to be transferred.

At the earliest it was poetry that was after the suitable word, and poetry has been after it ever since, and with great success through all the ages. The efforts of Amy Lowell and all the classic apostles of free verse that they are the only ones who are added to a fiction that gets beneath your skin. But as early as the days of the great poets, business also started in, and from then on down has continued to hunt on its rights to the inevitable word and that the writer or printer, in uniform or in hieroglyphics, should say exactly what it means and mean exactly what it says.

Clearness Most Vital
Nothing is more important for the business or professional man than to be able to use his mother tongue with precision and flexibility. For nothing is more fatal than the inability to convey thought, whether it be in a poem or in a justice dealing with a business or legal proposition or in a prospectus dealing with an engineering project. To accomplish this vital thing of conveying thought exactly and clearly it is not necessary so much to seek out a "worded word," as it is to use an ordinary simplicity of speech that will make clear and not the decorative phrases of word painting the chief object. The vehicle, as in all art, should be the means, not the end in itself. And while it is true that some advertising writers—whose endless rhymes make millions eat "chocolate," every morning for breakfast and thank God for the opportunity and privilege—of food of the purple patches of speech, just as the old woman in the church did like the latest phase of word painting the chief object of word painting is to make clear and not the decorative phrases of word painting the chief object. The vehicle, as in all art, should be the means, not the end in itself. And while it is true that some advertising writers—whose endless rhymes make millions eat "chocolate," every morning for breakfast and thank God for the opportunity and privilege—of food of the purple patches of speech, just as the old woman in the church did like the latest phase of word painting the chief object of word painting is to make clear and not the decorative phrases of word painting the chief object.

necessary to invent both professional, technical and scientific terminology in order to make up for the lack of the ordinary tongue whose common words often have a forcible force of meaning and an indefinable force which cannot be allowed in the law and which have to be avoided in the domain of science. For of course, scientific terms allow you to define a potato in words that set out the tubercular tuberosity exactly as it is beyond all controversy. And while the poet lamented of the word that

"A primrose by a river's brim
A yellow primrose was to him,
And it was nothing more!"
its value as a symbol of beauty being lost on him, botanists, admitting the beauty of the primrose, in order, however, to tell you the "something more" about it, are forced to label it as the "Primula vulgaris," a poisonous plant with non-angiospermous flowers, stamens, and pistils polymorphic, ovules amphitropous, styles filiform, stigma capitate; an account if absolutely accurate, but of words as difficult for most people to understand as the Latin or Greek from which they are derived, but necessary in order to give exclusive, inclusive and precise definition. Naturalists, the kind of terminology has a strictly limited scientific and professional outlook, and it can never take the place of clarity secured through the use of ordinary speech in dealing with the every day life of the mother tongue.

Clarity of English
And at this juncture it might as well be said there is no trouble about the clarity of English if we but stick to good usage. The French are very fond of claiming that theirs is the only language that conveys thought clearly. Ce n'est pas clair, n'est pas français. But this is one of those delusions which unfortunately we are always paying tribute to, for as a matter of linguistic fact, English being one of the great rubber languages, having had its hands on adding, Argon, Teutonic and Latin and Greek languages and all their later derivatives, is extremely rich in synonymic distinctions and a varied verbal fineness, far surpassing any one of the other great modern languages used by civilized peoples. And since English is rapidly becoming a universal world language, with American English as the determining form of it, it behooves us to take one another tongue somewhat more seriously. And for one thing, this American Speech Week should settle it beyond all question that those who use English as a matter of earning money should leave their leave-taking words to the school and out of it that make for sound and precise speech; for good English is short. The situation is a curious one and is full of paradoxes. Everywhere there is a complaint of slovenly English, and the schools are bitterly attacked, sometimes without warrant, for not turning out those who at least, know the three R's, "reading, right and 'rithmetic." There is no question that these lack of order and that the business world and the schools and colleges are sorely troubled by the down-at-the-heels and careless use of language. And in this issue the best event to be in the same boat with the worst, Harvard being no more of an exception than Public School No. 53. For, for many years, when the freshman English at Harvard was not the staple of the college it was the staple of the college. The graduate English not being very far in the background. Indeed, college presidents tell you of graduates in engineering and the sciences who can't convey thought even assisted by their third nomenclature clearly from one to another, and of teachers and professors who, though learned, cannot convey ideas in the class room or in text books, while we are all familiar with the ungrammatical and sloppy character of legislative enactments which even a Philadelphia lawyer cannot parse or construe. As an example of this kind of confusion among people where you would least expect it in the following well written editorial letter just received from (Continued on Page Twenty-Eight)

LACK OF COAL CLOSES MILLS

Announce Prosecutions of Colorado Mines Do Not Return

DENVER, Nov. 22.—Three flour mills in northern Colorado shut down today because of lack of coal. The mills were those at Longmont, Berthoud and Eaton.

If the new walkout of miners that began today is not stopped within a week every flour mill in state except those operated by electric power will have ceased operations, it was predicted tonight.

Thirteen hundred coal miners laid down their tools today throughout Colorado, alleging discrimination against their unions. Seven hundred miners never have gone back to the mines since the nation-wide coal strike was called off.

Attorney General Hays announced tonight if the men were not at work next Monday, prosecutions would be started alleging violation of an injunction issued in the district court here Thursday, ordering mine union officials to refrain from a strike called for Friday as a protest against alleged discrimination.

THE CHANGING WORLD

(Copyright 1919: By John T. McClellan.)

A few years ago, when a dollar was worth ten francs, a dinner in Paris costed up. But now, with a dollar worth near eight francs, the dinner in Paris amounts to much less.

Before the war there were many pampered playboys in this country whose life and health absolutely required them to go to the fashionable European spas every year. But now they find they have lived along pretty successfully for the last five years, during which time they have not been outside of their country once.

A few years ago our Russian immigrants hailed America as the land of opportunity after the tyranny and oppression of Russia. Now there are many of these men who are trying their best to make the United States as near like Russia as possible.

California Oil

Effect of Oil Suit Is Overestimated

Decision To Affect Similar Oil Suits

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 22.—The Supreme court decision rendered Monday in the Elk Hills case has been greatly overestimated. It is admitted that the value of the lands involved in this case is $142,000,000. This includes 162,000 acres and amounts to $137 per acre. All these lands, including other land assets, are carried on the books of the company at $1,905,700, or about $11 a share. Therefore, if the company sues with its big case, irrespective of the Elk Hills case and deducting the original amount of $1,905,700, in which account all lands including Mexico, Oregon, etc., are carried, it would add $137 per share to the stock. In other words, all lands are carried at about $11 per share on the books of the company.

If the Southern Pacific had won all their suits the stock would have been worth at least $137 per share in addition to its present book value. The case that it has lost was worth about $6 a share to the company, and the case that it yet to be decided, has some $126 per share to be added. However, there are other suits pending, and were only speculative possibilities.

"Southern Pacific has long been one of the best managed, as well as one of the largest railroad systems in the United States. The income on the stock amounted to 10.8% in 1915, 12.5% in 1916, 12.6% in 1917 and 10.3% in 1918. A 6 per cent dividend has been paid regularly for the last ten years, and is amply protected by income, which in the aggregate for the 4 years mentioned amounts to more than double the dividend requirements."

Big Rush Made for Arizona Mine Lands

KINGMAN (Ariz.), Nov. 22.—Valuable mining lands were thrown open to exploration last Saturday when the mineral lands leasing proclamation became effective covering the Walapai Indian Reservation, partly situated in Mohave and partly in Coconino counties. A great rush was made for the big copper deposits that had been explored by "bonanza" men in the interest of mining men from all sections of the state.

When the hour was announced last Saturday, nearly 500 men, many with vehicles of all kinds, from a silver to Packards, were in the race for the most promising properties. More than one hundred claims have already been staked and the country is fast filling up with prospectors. The deposits are in time and are in "blanchet" form. The ore is very rich, reaching better than 70 per cent copper, with a small amount of gold and silver. Shipments made from the main deposit have yielded better than 45 per cent copper. The reserve here is the Grand Canyon at its deepest point.

Oil Is Discovered in Allensworth Section

BAKERSFIELD, Nov. 22.—Oil has been discovered in Tulare county near Allensworth, according to reports received yesterday. W. J. G. Lambert of Venice City has received an offer from a Los Angeles capitalist asking for a lease on his property in section 14, 24-24, not far from Allensworth. He knows nothing of the existence of oil on the land and had placed the land in the hands of a realty firm for sale. The discovery of land in the section for oil development was made by Dr. F. W. Potter of Los Angeles, who turned over some of his holdings in that vicinity about two weeks ago. Several well-known men are interested in the locality.

BAKERSFIELD, Nov. 22.—George Verder has secured a patent to lots 7 and 8 in the west half of the southeast quarter of the northeast quarter, southwest quarter of the northeast quarter and the southeast quarter of the northwest quarter of section 18, 27-30. This land is several miles to the north of the Kern river fields near Pine Mountain.

Methods for Destroying Rabbits

By C. C. VANCE
Rabbits may be destroyed by poisoning or driving and shooting. The most effective method is by poisoning. It must be applied copiously and only after the trial or more than one type of procedure.

In poisoning jack rabbits, feeding grounds or runways ought to be definitely located. Most poisoned alfalfa leaves have often proved very effective in the fall when natural food has died up. When rabbits are feeding on alfalfa leaves after the last fall cutting or after mowing, small handfuls of the leaves are readily taken by rabbits. Drags in plowed land will often create a runway in which the bait can be laid.

THE ALFALFA FORMULA. Dissolve 1 ounce of strychnin sulphate in 2 gallons of hot water and sprinkle over 10 pounds of dry alfalfa hay leaves. Well formed leaves should be used. No dust or sticks should be mixed in with them. They can be thrown out of stacked or baled hay very easily on a large piece of canvas. Mix the leaves thoroughly with the moisture is absorbed. The poisoned leaves should be distributed in small handfuls in lines a few feet apart, across portions of the field where observations show the rabbits to be feeding; stock should be excluded. In localities where alfalfa is not raised, grain heads may be substituted.

POISONED OATS. Mix thoroughly 1 ounce powdered strychnin (alkaloid) and 1 ounce common baking soda. Dissolve 1 heaping tablespoonful of laundry starch in a little cold water, and add 1 quart boiling water. Boil and stir until this thin paste is formed. Slowly stir mixture of strychnin and soda into starch paste, stirring constantly until it becomes a smooth creamy mass. Add 1/2 ounce of saccharin and stir thoroughly. Pour this mixture while still hot, over 12 quarts of good oats, and mix with a shovel. A single bait of partly ripened or ripe heads of barley and wheat soaked in a sweetened solution of strychnin or coated with the starch-strychnin paste, just described, have also proved effective baits for rabbits, but care must be exercised in using them, as they are likely to be eaten by livestock.

POISON WASH FOR FRUIT TREES. Dissolve 1 ounce of strychnin (alkaloid) in 2 quarts of boiling water. Dissolve 1/2 pound of laundry starch in 1 pint cold water, stirring thoroughly. Pour the starch into the vessel containing the strychnin and boil the mixture a short time until it is clear. Add 1/2 ounce of glycerine and 1/2 ounce of kerosene. This mixture is a powerful poison for rabbits and is recommended for trial.

During the dry season in California melons and cull fruits have often proved effective. Watermelon cut into portions, or left almost whole, with a slice out of one side, can have the cut surface rubbed with powdered strychnin alkaloid or solutions may be made into which crystals of strychnin sulphate are introduced. Good results have been reported from this.

Jack rabbits are often found where there is less alfalfa than elsewhere. Use an ounce of salt ground together in a mortar with 1/2 ounce of powdered strychnin (alkaloid) may do good work. To prevent stock from taking it, the mixture may be introduced into each under bared into short blocks of wood. These can be placed near feeding grounds or spots where a pile of hay has been placed to attract the rabbits.

GOOD CATTLE $3,000 A PAIR IN ITALY

Italy is in worse condition agriculturally, particularly in regard to the supply of cattle, than any other of the European countries with the possible exception of Rumania. According to experts who have studied conditions there, observed J. J. Hild, agent of New York, a former commercial agent at Washington. "In the four years of war the number of cattle in Italy decreased nearly 1,000,000 head, or approximately 12 per cent, but these figures do not include the loss of the war. The food and health of the people has been a heavy loss, estimated by some as high as 50 per cent in the last two years, and the rest damage, in fact, is incalculable. For there has been a loss of 25,000 head of cattle in the last two years. The loss of the cattle that have been lost is a heavy loss. One ordinarily would not realize that in Italy there are buffaloes, but, according to the statistics, there were close to 20,000 buffaloes in the country in 1935, and this number had grown to 25,000 last year, showing that this animal is harder than the domestic animals. Cattle are used largely for milking purposes in the cities of Italy. That country will need many thousands head of cattle in the next few years, and her people are looking to the United States to meet the supply. Extra good cattle have been sold in Italy for as much as $3,000 a pair."

CRUDE OIL ADVANCES. SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 22.—All grades of crude oil produced in Ohio and Wyoming fields have been advanced 23 cents a barrel with exception of Plymouth grade, which is up 28 cents.

MODESTY.

Modesty is a jewel of unlimited value bestowed upon woman kind in the beginning of time, by the faculty of the universe. It is ever at par in any country on the globe, and is correctly appraised without knowledge of that country's language. Modesty is never mistaken nor misinterpreted, but the observer brilliant scholar or mental dullard; it is a passport to admiring respect among all men and in all nations, and it is pointed out to the young with loving admonitions. She who loses this jewel or ignores it at once becomes an object of doubt and too often of uncharitable suspicion. Forever after her worth is questioned and her genuineness made a subject of speculative discussion. No other adornment so well becomes womanhood as does this perfect gem which is hers invariably at birth. No other loss so hampered her in the course of the world where character is measured and weighed. Oh, wise indeed is she who cherishes this precious gift above all others with which she has been blessed. More fortunate still the woman, young or old, who wears it with an unconscious grace. Here is the dignity of genuine and lofty character—inalienable, unmistakable of the true gentleness. —Grace E. Hall in Portland Oregonian.

You Can Invest in a Business That is Already a Success Because It Has the Essentials

Every success in business has been directly due to its essentials for success. They constitute the character of the institution combined with the ability of its organization, the production possibilities, the market available and the demand for its product.

The Leach Biltwell Motor Company has every essential of success—it is already a success, because it is producing motor cars that are sold before they are completed and the personnel of its organization represent the utmost in ability and those back of it give the enterprise a commercial character that is unequalled.

We Offer You Leach Biltwell Motor Co. 8% Cumulative Preferred Stock Redeemable at 110 and 120—a 10% or 12% Investment

This is an issue we unhesitatingly recommend to those who appreciate an opportunity of investing in a California institution with an assured future—one that has been passed upon by the California Commissioner of Corporations—where the investor can watch the progress made and at the same time share in the profits and the satisfaction derived through contributing to the industrial advancement of the west. It has been conclusively demonstrated that automobiles can be manufactured here successfully, and there is every reason why the Leach Biltwell Motor Company should experience the same rapid expansion as has marked the growth of other enterprises organized and perfected on the Pacific Coast with Pacific Coast capital and energy.

Production Now Under Way

The Leach Power-Plus Six is a reality—cars are being turned out daily—a schedule of 900 cars for the first year is now in force. The cars are assembled, the bodies and tops built, upholstered and finished in its own factory by an ever increasing corps of skilled workmen.

The Market is Unlimited

All of the United States, Latin South America, Australia and the Orient offer a market; 144 cars have already been ordered from the Leach Biltwell Motor Company by Texas dealers. With low coastwise and trans-Pacific water freight rates, the Pacific Coast and export markets present a profitable and ever increasing outlet for such high grade cars as the Leach Power-Plus Six—the only custom built motor car of standard construction now in production.

GOVERNOR INVOKES THANKSGIVING SPIRIT

Time Is Healing Sorrows
of Battle; Ahead
Is Happiness

SACRAMENTO, Calif., Nov. 22.—Governor William D. Stephens today declared Thanksgiving day, November 27, a legal holiday in California.

The President of the United States has proclaimed Thursday, the 27th day of November, 1919, as Thanksgiving day.

"It becomes the duty of the governor of California," Stephens declared, "this day a legal holiday and to remind the people of the state of the occasion when expression is given of praise to Almighty God for the beneficence that have been granted them."

"One year ago there was solemn rejoicing over the ending of the awful world conflict. The griefs of war weighed heavily upon us, a racing epidemic was carrying death to many homes. In those hours of sore trial the faith of our people in Divine Providence never abated. In the intervening year that faith has been fully justified. We can see bright days ahead. God has been good to us and will bless us as a nation with the highest ideals and with the most practical achievements for the welfare of mankind. If we but do our part individually and collectively in preserving law and order, in the practice of the Golden Rule and in upholding the flag of our country at all times."

"Time is healing the sorrows of the battle field and prosperity is with our people everywhere. The bounty of nature has been abundant during this past year, and we should be thankful that California has had such a generous part in helping to alleviate starvation in the world."

"Now, therefore, I, William D. Stephens, governor of the state of California, do hereby proclaim Thursday, November 27th, to be a legal holiday for thanksgiving and prayer."

(Signed) "W. D. STEPHENS, Governor."

PRINCE LEAVES FOR EUROPE BY WAY OF HALIFAX

(Continued from Page 1.) country had been longer and that I had had the chance of seeing more American people, but the time was up, my next visit, meanwhile, I want to say, everything is fine. You are leaving for the more you value it, the greater will be your own value to your country and the greater the joy of your country always first and above all things, be good Americans. The better Americans you are, the better friends you will be to your brother people of the British empire. Sime Says Goodbye.

"The last part of my goodbye to the prince was, 'Admiral Sime, five carrier pigeons were taken on board the Renown to be released 500 miles at sea and return to New York with greetings from the prince to his New York host."

"Sir Robert Borden, premier of Canada, went aboard to accompany the royal party to Halifax."

"Just before the prince sailed, he handed newspapersmen this statement:—"

"I wish to leave a message for the city of New York before I sail today. The people of New York have welcomed me with such kindness I cannot leave without saying two words of farewell."

"I refuse entirely to say good bye. Whether you like it or not, I am going to pay the United States another visit as soon as I can, and because I like it so much, I wish to see much more of this country and its people, including the great west."

"There is one thing which I should particularly like you to say for me in the press. I have had hundreds of charming letters since I came to the United States and not a single disagreeable one. I wish that all these letters could have been answered. They have been too many to make this possible but I hope their writers will let me thank them in the way for the many nice things they have said."

"New York has been so kind to me that I can never forget this visit. As I have said before, I am proud to be a New Yorker in my own right, and I determined to see more of the great city as soon as I can. I can never have enough of such hospitality as yours and I hope all the people of the city will realize how grateful and appreciative I am."

The prince photographed a ticket for the Actors' Night Memorial Day performance in this city December 5, which will be sold to the highest bidder, the proceeds to be devoted to the actors' fund."

Zionists Take Part in Presentation. A silver and garnet studded Menorah, the traditional candelabra used in the ceremony commemorating the liberation of ancient Judea, by the Maccabees, was presented to the prince by a Zionist delegation, headed by Judge Julian W. Mack.

British friendship for the Jews was emphasized by Judge Mack in making the presentation.

The prince granted a special audience to five members of the book committee of the war relief when he was present. A handsomely bound copy of "The Defenders of Democracy," a book dedicated to those who served in the war and containing historical messages, poems, stories and illustrations. At the conclusion of the presentation a speech by Mrs. Robert McKee, a daughter of Benjamin Harrison, the prince accepted the suggestion that the first of a number of children's libraries to be established in Europe by the society be named after him.

TWO PLAYS PER DAY IN CROWDED BROADWAY HOUSES

By DIXIE HINES

NEW YORK, Nov. 17, 1919.—The theatres of New York have adopted the "two-play" policy, and plays are being presented during nearly each of the twenty-four hours which is required to make up a day and a night. New plays are coming in, and the old plays depart with reluctance. To meet the new conditions many plays, rather than trust to the vascillation of the road, have elected to remain here and play in the forenoon and on off matinee afternoons with the regular evening plays. We have at present a score of theatres housing two attractions, some in the afternoon and one at night.

Naturally this condition will arouse interest in theatre building and we will probably find many new playhouses ready for next year. Two houses are now being constructed, both for the seasons, and one will probably be opened at an early date with Georges Plateau, the noted French actor who has contributed so much good work to the English speaking stage.

"The Unknown Woman" was shown this week with Marjorie Rambeau in the leading role. Felix Krembs and Lumbden share creditable support. Miss Rambeau is one of the most interesting actresses we have, and while the present play provides little more than an opportunity to display certain emotional qualities possessed by her, it is of sufficient strength to hold the attention of the audience while its somewhat trite story is being unfolded, and surely while Miss Rambeau is on the stage, she has several electrical moments and takes full advantage of them. The play has scored a success among lovers of melodrama, and there are many such at present.

A musical play out of the ordinary is "The Musical Melody," for which Sigmond Romberg has written some excellent music, and which is acted with skill by Julia Dean in a dramatic role, and with pleasing effect by Charles Purcell in the comic role. The cast is capably endowed with beauty and talent, but it is more the splendid costuming and effective scenery which makes the appeal. No more beautiful stage settings have ever been seen in New York than the symphony in colors created by Willy Pogany. Good taste predominates throughout. Some very effective dancing was contributed by Ray Stephens and George Beaumont, and Tom Macnamara was amusing in his role. It is a comedy with music far above the average and has been happily received by the jazz-fueled theatre goers of the town.

Arthur Trevor, band master, is planning to build an amusement pier in Asbury Park, at a cost of $500,000. Trevor's project will include a theatre for pictures. Plans have already been submitted to the Mayor of Asbury Park.

YOUTHFUL SHAH OF PERSIA IS WELCOMED TO ENGLAND

Shah of Persia visits London

The youthful Shah of Persia, Reza Pahlavi, is shown here in a photograph taken upon his recent arrival in England from Paris, where he represented his country at the peace conference. The Shah was welcomed to England by Prince Albert, and is shown here in company with the Prince, inspecting the naval guard at Dover. It is reported that the Shah at the close of his visit to England, has planned a visit to the United States.

Edward Jose has been engaged by Louis Mayer to direct Anita Stewart in "The Fighting Shepherdess" by Caroline Lockhart. The production will be made on the coast.

LOCKS EXAMINERS IN THE BANK VAULT

Cashier, Short $400,000
Has Disappeared,
Crete, Illinois

CHICAGO, Nov. 22.—The Illinois State Bank of Crete, Ill., today failed to open. It was announced a warrant charging embezzlement had been issued for the missing cashier, Gust Kracke, in connection with thefts of more than $400,000.

The bank was capitalized at $250,000. The vault door and the janitor are left—that's about all—said a state bank examiner.

Speculation in which he was said to have lost more than $100,000 in a year's trading, was blamed for Kracke's alleged peculation.

Two days ago the bank examiners went to Crete to examine the institution in response to an anonymous letter. Kracke, according to the examiners, received them and turned over his books, keys and unlocked the vault. "I'm going across the street a minute—just make yourselves at home," he told them.

An hour later the examiners found they were locked in the building and that Kracke had driven away in his automobile. He has not been heard from since, so far as is known.

Kracke is postmaster, police magistrate, notary public, life and fire insurance agent and described as a pillar of his church in Crete. He is 37 years old, married and has a 7-year-old son.

During the first Liberty loan when quotas were assigned, George Woodruff, county chairman, wrote Kracke urging stimulation of subscriptions. Kracke's reply was said to have been to the effect that "his people didn't see any sense to all this war foolishness and did not want to buy bonds." Later, Kracke was reprimanded for "un-American conduct" in his treatment of two soldiers, arrested at Crete.

ON THE WIRE

Oh, the sounds that wheeze and hum
Tauntingly by my ear;
Why can't an answer come
From central to me here?
Oh, why did I ask for any number?
Oh, why did I ever ring?
For I'm surely dropping in slumber
Holding this speechless thing.
But wait—there is a buzzing in my ear.

Alas! they've connected my party at last.
All agony and torture is past,
I shall speak to a human again.

Ah! in my ear—sounds that hum and wheeze
—Hello! Hello!—and then
—Number, please!

HINDENBURG'S HEAD COMES OFF; GREAT STATUE IS DEMOLISHED

Demolish Hindenburg statue.

The giant wooden statue of General von Hindenburg, which was used by the Germans during the war to raise funds for war purposes, is being destroyed. Here is shown the "head" of the great statue lying in front of the Column of Victory in the Tiergarten in Berlin. During the war thousands of Germans made pilgrimages to the great statue and paid from a mark up for the privilege of driving a nail into the statue. Of course, the higher up on "Hindie" the nail was hammered home the higher the price.

OIL DRILLING IN ALASKA.

The petroleum produced in Alaska is derived wholly from a single geological claim—the Kaktavik oil field, according to the United States Geological Survey, Department of the Interior. The old wells on this claim and the refinery were operated as usual in 1918. Two new productive wells were also drilled in the Kaktavik field. The total production in 1918 was somewhat larger than in 1917. There has been a revival of interest in the potential Alaskan oil fields during the year in anticipation of the expected passage of a law providing for the leasing of the Alaskan oil lands. It is reported to the Geological Survey that investigation of the supposed oil lands in Alaska peninsula were made during the summer of 1918. No legal provision has yet been made for the leasing and the Alaskan oil lands are still withdrawn from entry. There was some drilling for oil in the Kaktavik field in the summer of 1918, but the results were unfavorable, as was to be expected. At Seward some interest was aroused over the discovery of bituminous sands, issuing from the mud and water at several localities in the swamps along the railroad. The rocks near these localities, as described in 1915 by U. S. Grant of the Geological Survey, are stated to have been metamorphosed and told of a degree which makes it impossible for accumulations of oil or gas to be retained in them.—San Francisco Chronicle.

UNCLE SAM MAKING A MAP.

The fact that the United States Geological Survey is publishing in thousands of sheets, a large scale map of the United States is by no means so well known to the public as it should be, considering that this work has been in progress for forty years. The various "quadrangles" of this map, mostly on scales varying from one inch to four inches to the mile, ought to be in everyday use in all parts of the country for which such sheets have been published. The efforts of the survey to increase the use of these maps by placing them on sale at post-offices have not, it is said, proved very successful. On the other hand, the maps are extensively used in schools. The utility of these maps in illustrating lessons in physical geography is brought to notice in a circular lately published by the survey. Here we find descriptions of certain sheets representing widely scattered regions of the country and furnishing examples of a wide range of geographic features. One area, in Arizona, shows a valley in which "canyons rather deep without forming a main stream." Another shows a stretch of "California coast," whose shore line is irregular, with numerous rocky stacks lying just off shore, and the adjacent country rising to a well marked terrace. Several sheets illustrate the effects of ancient glaciation. A Washington sheet shows a symmetrical volcanic cone, on whose flanks are more than half a dozen glaciers. In short, an endless variety of material for classroom use is furnished by the topographic atlas sheets.—Scientific American.

FAITH AND LOVE.

When I behold the leaves of autumn fall
And flutter multitudinous o'er the grass,
Laying a varied garment over all;
When winged aqueducts to the southward pass:

When well-drenched mountains smoke
With steam;
When clouds hang, bosom-pierced,
On trees;
When hoar-frosts o'er the woodlands gleam;
A faith and hope immortal speaks in these.

And when the feathered regiments return
And bring with them blue skies and springtime's showers,
While underneath, earth's molded humked years
Soft buds and blades that burst in glacial towers—

Then doth the whole of earth, below,
Teach faith in autumn and in springtime—Love!
—M. A. YOTTERS, in Portland Oregonian.

SALVATION THROUGH WORK.

Stick to that which has been tried and found good—fight for liberty under the law—work and prosper—such are the thoughts impressed on its fellow countrymen by Premier Clemenceau in his address at Strasbourg, which many profess to regard as the veteran's "political testament."
Clemenceau is a Socialist, as that term is used in continental Europe to designate men holding to views that Americans would term "progressive" and Britishers would call "liberal." He is intensely sympathetic toward the ordinary man—toward the great mass of workers, toilers and thinkers, who constitute the majority of any country's population, who rear its children and who, in a free state, ultimately determine its policies.

But Clemenceau is worldly wise. He has many ideas, but few illusions. He possesses to an extreme degree the French genius for logical thought and to an even greater degree the French capacity for stating a fact so clearly and concisely as to leave no room for doubt as to its worth or lack of value. He dismisses the Bolsheviks from consideration because they do not appeal to French reason, but to a foreign doctrine of force. "There can be no discussion between them and the public," he declares, because in their eyes, all government and all changes in government resolve themselves into a simple question of force. In championing freedom themselves, they want to impose upon others a terrible and absolute dictatorship.

The way out for France and for the world, he says, is to be found in tolerance, in justice and in work. His views are one with those of representative men in the United States, Britain, Italy and, for that matter, in every country. The situation in France differs in no essential particular from that in any other land.

Clemenceau's remarks were intended as much for foreign as for domestic consideration and the advice he has tendered Frenchmen is the only advice that reason can tender, Americans, Britishers or Italians.—Seattle Times.

Two Tommies, disheveled, torn with wounds, and altogether unlovely, were on leave in London. As they stood in Trafalgar Square there approached a detachment of the Windsor guard in silver trappings, waving plumes, red coats, long varnished boots shining like mirrors and kid gloves.

The Tommies looked on in silence for a moment and then one nudged his mate.

"Looks, Bill," he whispered in an awed voice. "Them's soldiers!"—New York Globe.

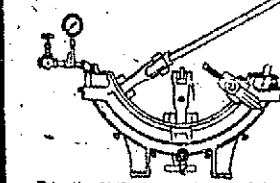

"Is your wife economical?" I suppose so. She says she is determined not to pay more than $1.00 for a gown this year."—Detroit Free Press.

"I can't keep my watch from gaining time," remarked the man who is always fretted about something. "Can't a jeweler fix it?" "I doubt it. I begin to suspect that watch was made in one of those factories where nobody thinks about anything except shorter hours."—Washington Star.

The Cylinder that Never Corrodes

You never have to scour out a Thor to get it ready for light clothes. No matter how soiled, how muddy—the kiddies' play clothes may be—they never leave a bit of deposit in the cylinder of the Thor. And the hand-polished maple cylinder can't corrode—it's always spotlessly clean.

You see this smooth, white maple cylinder swings clear of the outer wall of the washer nearly two inches. That means that all the sediment goes in the metal lined part—and is quickly rinsed out. And instead of the sour, soapy, unpleasant odor and the gummy sediment that you find in a metal cylinder—there's just the clean sweetness of the polished maple that "tempers" and hardens like old ivory.

PREPARE TO PAY INCOME TAX

Blanks Will Be Mailed in December by Collector

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 23.—Collector of Internal Revenue Justus S.
Ward, announced today that plans for the issuance early in December of forms for filing income and net profits tax returns are being made by the Bureau of Internal Revenue.
Taxpayers will thus be given the opportunity of making out their returns immediately upon the closing of their books for the year 1919, when accurate knowledge of their accounts is fresh in their minds.

As a convenience to themselves and as a means of expediting the work of the Government, taxpayers are urged by the Bureau to avail themselves of this opportunity. The period for filing is from January 1 to March 15, 1920.

If the tax is paid in quarterly installments, one-fourth of the amount must accompany the filing of the return.

Form 1040A will be used for filing individual income tax returns of $5,000 and less, and Form 1040 for filing returns of income in excess of that amount.

The normal rate of tax for 1919, provided for in the Revenue Act of 1918, is 4 per cent on the first $1,000 above the exemptions, and 8 per cent on the remaining net income. The tax for 1918 was 5 and 12 per cent respectively. The surtax rates, which range from 1 per cent on the amount of net income between $5,000 and $6,000 to 65 per cent on the amount of net income exceeding $1,000,000, are the same as for the year 1918. The exemptions of $1,000 for single persons and $2,000 for married persons and heads of families remain unchanged.

These rates apply to every citizen and resident of the United States.
Alien non-residents receiving income from sources within the United States are subject to the full tax of 5 per cent on such income in excess of the exemptions.

SHORE MEMORIES.
Laugh, little vipples, sing!
Refresh me with your joy,
What though these hours too swiftly wing?

Short bliss can never stay,
I have not seen you with that delight!
Can not a memory mock Time's flight?

Don't beach your sands of gold
Shall glint in ceaseless flow
Through my life's glass. Night dear
I hold

That ridge where dark pines grow
To make your brightness seem more bright.

As day is fairer for the night,
And, oh, you waves, swell high!
Weave wild, melodious spells,
Whose vibrant chords I can not die,
But like deep churning bells.

Ring through my dreams by night, and day,
And and then elude my cares away.

So, sands, and curling wave,
I voice to me and farewell:
The "way of living" which you gave,
And, if forgetful, I am sad,
Bring out your charms; make me glad!

"Will you marry me?" "Sir! You are the last man on earth I would marry." "Never mind, then. I didn't suppose there were so many ahead."
—Boston Transcript.

"Don't you miss a man about the house?" "Why should I? The stove is smoking and the parrot is swearing."

The Future Value Of Garden Home Acres Cannot Be Computed

The Natural Advantages—Vast Developments—Sure Expansion of the City Northward Guarantee Your Investment in Garden Tract

Garden Home Tract has every natural advantage to make it the most desirable suburban home property anywhere adjacent to the City of Fresno.

It is NORTH—10 minutes' distant from the business district by street car—toward which the city is building with amazing progress.

It is laid out on HIGH GROUND, affording perfect drainage facilities.

Garden Home already has the Wishon street car line.

It already has beautiful Van Ness Boulevard.

The State Normal College and the new Fresno High School are just 5 minutes away.

It is cooled in summer time by fresh north air before it blows over the city.

The soil is fertile. Trees, vines, shrubbery, flowers, vegetables—make rapid growth and produce fruitage abundantly.

---Added to These Advantages Are the Wonderful Improvements Being Made by the J. C. Forkner Organization.

More than $100,000 will be spent in beautifying Garden Tract!

Parks will be made. Avenues graded and lined with ornamental trees and shrubbery.

A high-class, modern water system will be installed to furnish an abundant supply of water for domestic and irrigation purposes.

Each Garden Acre will be planted to 50 Kadota Fig Trees.

And the tract otherwise improved, beautified and restricted to make it worthy of homes of the finest character.

With these natural advantages—with the proof before your very eyes that Fresno is sweeping Northward with amazing progress and will march right across Garden Tract in a very few years—with the absolute guarantee of improvements given by the J. C. Forkner Organization—and the fact that NOW you can secure these Fig Garden Home Acres on the Easiest of Terms, is there any sound reason why you should not take advantage of this most extraordinary opportunity in Fresno's highest class suburban real estate and reap the benefit of the substantial profit sure to follow?

We can only say this in conclusion: Garden Acres are selling rapidly. When they are gone, there probably never again will be offered a tract at these prices, and with these advantages. Better come out to the tract today and choose your Fig Garden Home Acre.

Private Fittings By Appointment

VARIETY OF CLOTHES ARE SUPPLIED TO U. S. SAILORS

Shifting seas and changing climates in the combat with weather, sailors are ready for her varieties whether they be of inland-like peace or of the storm-tossed waters of the ocean. In all this, the sailor knows how to dress to meet every condition, and the Navy not only requires that he be sufficiently clad but that changes of clothes shall be in his sea bag ready for use when he needs them.

The "gib" takes the cut of his clothes, and there is a roll and pouch about him at all times that proclaims his calling. Fastidious, the sailor's uniform may change the habit of the army man, but not so with the man of the sea. His uniform is blue; the blue is not a mere color and tradition, it is a necessity. Years ago in the days of wooden sailing ships, when seamen had to climb masts and dangle on the stretching cables, and to rest and furl in all weathers, the blue was the color of the sea, and the blue-shaded lower ends of the trousers. Time and the changes in construction of ships have never brought a change.

The sailor also clings to his black silk neckerchief. Draped around his neck, it is a tradition that belongs to the sea. Later days have seen the wearing of a white tanyard about the neck but the black neckerchief still remains. Tradition tells that the custom of thus wearing the neckerchief originated with the British tars, as a mark of mourning for that historic seaman Lord Nelson. It has never been removed.

Curiously enough, the sailor gives a good deal of attention to this part of his costume. Early mornings, or just before the call for shore-leave is sounded, there is heard about the ship a "flapping" that sounds like waves striking the side. This is Jack getting the wrinkles out of his neckerchief. The neckerchief is stretched between two ship-mates who, grasping the four corners, give it an up and down shaking until it is smooth and glossy. Then folding it diagonally, rolling it and fitting it under his collar, he ties the ends in a knot that is a real symbol of the sea.

This habit is also a rite, a duty about his hats. He has three of them. No one can exactly explain the mysterious balance a seaman acquires in perching the circular panache cap on his head at almost any angle. This cap is ornamented with a band bearing the name of his ship or station, or simply the gilded inscription "U. S. NAVY."

The sailor also has a knitted cap for winter wear, one that can be pulled down over his ears or arranged to cover nearly all of his face—something he needs for the protection from the winter gales or to shield him from the wind as he scans the sea from the crow's nest.

But of their all, his little white hat that he loves the most. With the same skill and nonchalance he perches this on his head, always with the appearance of, but never actually falling off. This hat he can wash inside the top. It is a little string of "white" at winter, he can leave it out on wash day; this he calls a "top."

When a boy, on entering the Navy, takes off his home clothes for the first time, he is given a complete outfit. It is regulation. He must know just how to fold and store away each bit according to set and immutable rules. And in each of these ship's uniforms, he must always be scrupulously clean and neat. Some of the ships have a laundry but if not he must wash it himself. There are also ship's tailors, but he must nevertheless learn how to sew, to darn and to mend.

Once a week he must unpack his sea bag, unlash his hammock, open up his dirty bag and, spreading all his dress possessions out on deck, submit to a scrutinizing inspection. Jack gets his clothes from the Navy storekeeper, whether in port or at sea. The Service maintains factories where are made the blue and white uniforms and the clo's fitting and

ORDER OF THE BATH
"Do you know that the Order of the Bath?" the teacher asked Mickey.
"Sure, ma'am," replied the boy. "In our house it's Katy, then me, brother, then me."

"You do not seem impressed by brother Mickey's glowing description of heaven?" "Now, you see, he's a real estate agent!"—Judge.

word that all were supplied. Innovations in dressing the men were made to meet war conditions. For those on submarines the Navy now supplies a close fitting woaden suit that completely covers body and legs. Over this is worn a weather proof suit with a hood. Boots are also provided. For the men on destroyers another variety of covering is used, while still other changes are made for those on the larger ships.

NO KISSING IN PUBLIC IN JAPAN
In Japan no kissing is allowed in public, therefore none is allowed in the cinema. Curiously enough, the objectionable films mostly come from America, where some old laws against kissing are still in existence. So recently as 1891 a student of Yale University kissed his sweetheart in a restaurant in Boston, and both were sentenced to fifteen days' imprisonment under what is said to have been a law passed in the reign of Charles II, when the New England states were British colonies. Under the famous "Blue Laws," many men were fined or put in the stocks for kissing their wives in public on Sundays, such conduct being according to the morals of those days, "vulgar and unseemly behavior."

HE STOOPS TO CONQUER

ROSE POINT BLOUSE, $3500

Miss Adelaide Ambrose, of Kansas, wearing what is probably the most valuable lace creation in the world, imagine a rare old piece of rose point, which has lain in the dark till it's the color of seasoned ivory. Imagine it draped over cloth of silver and fastened with ropes of tiny pearls, and a memory of old Brussels. The blouse is the work of Edwin Wolf of the Blousmakers, Inc., and is now being exhibited in a New York show before being sent across the country for exhibition in all principal cities. Rose point, as probably everyone knows, is such stuff as is used in bridal veils and trimmings for stately gowns. Priced at one thousand dollars a yard, it is seldom used in large quantities. Wherefore, you find it rare to believe that this blouse is the first one ever made entirely of rose point. It is valued at $3,500. The lace came from Belgium. The short sleeves of the blouse are formed by the lace, the edges joining at the tip of the shoulder and falling in a soft line. The scallop of the lace finished the irregular hip line.

The next meeting of the club will be December 3, when Mrs. Mollie Bloom Flagg, president of the San Joaquin Valley Federation of Women's Clubs, will be the guest. Her subject will be "Indians." This will be a joint meeting with the Selma Wednesday Literary Club and will be held at the club house.

Mrs. Mollie Bloom Flagg, district federation president, met with the Dinuba woman's club on Friday afternoon, and with her usual enthusiasm presented the federation idea, working it out in detail from the district club up through county and district organizations to the state federation. Mrs. Flagg also emphasized the importance of every woman toward complete Americanization of all residents, giving due value to the work of the government home demonstrator and other agencies. December 5 will be the Christmas bazaar, presided over by Mrs. W.

B. Nichols, assisted by Mesdames A. O. Miller, Adeline Timmons and W. P. McCracken.

At a called meeting of the Women's Improvement Club of Patterson, held at the grammar school Wednesday afternoon, it was voted to change the day of meeting to the third Thursday in each month. The next regular meeting to be held December 18. It was voted to extend an invitation to Mollie Bloom Flagg, President of San Joaquin Valley Club, to speak there on the evening of December 1 to the citizens of Patterson, on "Community Spirit," or a kindred subject. Committees were appointed on program and entertainment.

The Dr. Roy Woman's Improvement Club was entertained on Friday afternoon by Mrs. J. D. Leslie at her home on Washington avenue. A talk was given by Mrs. J. P. Alvord, who addressed the club on the Thanksgiving season, and social problems. Musical numbers were given by Christian Hansen, violinist; Mrs. W. D. Coates, Jr., voice; and Nettie Alexander, piano.

A bazaar is being planned for the pre-Christmas season and a committee appointed to make the necessary preliminary arrangements includes Mrs. C. W. Curren, chairman, Mrs. Ross Owens, Mrs. A. T. Wilkinson, Mrs. I. C. McClellan and Mrs. W. A. Lynch.

AN OLD ROAD.

(By Grace E. Hall, in Portland Oregonian.)

"Two years since I had passed that way."

The road was changed and new, strange faces peered from homes I'd never known. The trees in autumn's glad array waved friendly greeting true, and seemed the only friends now quite my own.

For progress had been busy there, on mountain-side and hill, in valleys and within the forest green.

One saw the writing on the wall by hand that's never still, and "new order" was the brand on every scene.

Yet within my heart strange murmur woke.

A warmth and tender glow came stealing through my veins, I knew not why; I traveled once again a country road I used to know.

And the memory brought a mist before my eyes.

What feeble words of sentiment to the club will be given by Mrs. Mollie B. Flagg, president of the San Joaquin Valley Federation of Women's Clubs.

Her subject will be "Indians." This will be a joint meeting with the Selma Wednesday Literary Club and will be held at the club house.

RUMANIAN ROYAL FAMILY

The members of the Rumanian royal family occupy a most remarkable position now in European and world politics. King Ferdinand, upper left, as a member of one branch of the Hohenzollern family, was suspected of pro-German sympathies throughout the war, and when Rumania was beaten by Von Mackensen's forces, appeared eager to yield and enter the combination of King Carol, upper right, daughter of the Duke of Edinburgh and granddaughter of Queen Victoria, was openly and strongly pro-ally and even in the hour of Rumania's bitterest defeat, persisted in continuous hostility to Germany. She has, throughout the last two years, been actively an asset of the allied powers. Rumania, however, on account of her invasion of Hungary, is again at odds with the peace conference. Their eldest son, Prince Carol, lower left, on account of his recent marriage to a girl of humble origin, has been formally deprived of his rights as crown prince, and has been alienated from his family. His younger brother, Nicholas, lower right, has, therefore, been declared heir to the throne.

WINIFRED BLACK

Writes About

THE GIRL WHO "STUCK"

Well, well, well, how they come flying in—the letters—like a great flock of birds.

Some of them are slinging pellets, full of storm and stress and tales of bad weather and wild winds and tossing seas.

Some of them are like eagles, come swooping, high-minded, full of the clear courage of the upper air.

Some of them are like little chuckling hens, fussing and fussing about nothing, and very anxious to tell the world all about it.

And some are like great flights of song birds, singing as they fly, and filling the world with music and joy.

Here's a letter that is written right straight from an honest, truthful, and loyal heart.

Are you discouraged because you can't seem to make things go the way you want them to?

Do you feel some times as if your marriage was a mistake, or as if you'd be happier anywhere on earth than in the home you are trying to make for yourself?

Are you a spoiled, petted darling, used to your own way, happy when ever you can get everything you want, and miserable if your best friend has a prettier gown or a smarter hat, or a newer motor boat than you?

Are you more ambitious than you should be? Have you a champagne taste and a beer income?

Do you want everything every one else has and a little more?

Did you marry with the dream of a beautiful and perfect love to crown your life, and have you found to your dismay that the man you married isn't a hero at all—he is just a plain everyday man?

Is Life "Hard?" Does he come home with a "grouch" and refuse to speak once in awhile? Does he take a dislike to your best friend, and wonder what on earth you can see in her?

Is he jealous, exacting, selfish; does he neglect you; does he humiliate you by his attentions to "other women," and have you just about made up your mind that you can't stand it another minute?

Don't give up yet! Sit down this very minute and read this letter from a little woman who has been right down to the very depths of the gulf of despair and had come up again smiling with a singing heart.

Here's the letter—read it with reverence, for it is written out of the very core of the human heart.

Dear Winifred Black:

I have read "Rehabilitated" letter and I just want to tell you my case. When I was 20 I left my home, came East and met the man, and after six weeks married him, much against the wishes of a dear friend of our family, and was happy for about two years, when he began to drift.

In the mean-time God sent us a beautiful little girl and I thought how happy we were going to be; but he kept drinking more and more, and instead of coming home to his dinner he stopped in the saloon on the corner; there he would stay nearly all the night until I went after him and begged him to come home.

He lost his position, and I, with my health very poor and with no money, did not know what to do, as I had never worked, and was too proud to write home for help.

A friend got me a position in a good family where they took my little daughter and myself—and how good they were to me!

My home was broken up and sold for not paying the mortgage, and my husband left it to go and get drunk every more and more, and he kept coming to me, and I was trying to keep his body and soul together, hoping against hope that he would come back; but it was too much for me.

Yet She Has Won.

After struggling for 27 years, I had to go home to my people. They did not receive me with open arms. It was worse than what I left, but I struggled on and kept writing to my husband, trying to keep track of him and to help him.

One day he wrote and said, "I am not drinking," and sent me $5. the first money in five years—and, Oh God, how I felt! I knew something was surely going to happen, and it did.

I am now nearly four years since "Win" and everything is so different. We have $1,300 saved and everything we want, and I am so happy it all seems like a dream, and he always says, "It was my little girl, you, who led me that helped to pull me through."

Dear Winifred Black, you don't know how happy we are and how glad I am that I did stick to him.

There—what do you think of your own case now?

There Is No Such Thing As "WELL ENOUGH"

Keep away from the "let well enough alone" crowd. Old "Well Enough" is the General of Calamity, Disease and Disappointment. There is no such thing as "Well Enough." No matter how good a thing is, work to make it better.

We might all be using hieroglyphics today, but dissatisfaction gave us our alphabet and the written book and then the printed book and shorthand and the typewriter and the phonograph. We might all be traveling across country with a backache, on a camel's back like the Queen of Sheba, if we had been satisfied with camels and had not invented the two-wheeled cart, then the four-wheeled wagon, the stage coach, the steam engine, the express train, the rubber-tired automobile and the flying machine. Today the Queen of Sheba would call King Solomon up on the telephone, make an appointment for that afternoon and be home in time for dinner—all because the kings and queens and the ordinary people that followed her were dissatisfied.

Wise dissatisfaction and ambition is what makes the world progressive. Nagging, senseless, peevishness is not wise dissatisfaction. Old "Well Enough" is a sleepy, harmful, dismal humbug. Don't let him influence you. If your teeth do not ache, don't say, "I guess I'll let well enough alone and not see a dentist. He might find something wrong and I am not bothered now." All well and good, but tomorrow you may develop rheumatism caused by hidden pus pockets in a tooth, which would have been detected by a dentist on examination, and would have saved you from the rheumatism.

OUR X-RAY ELIMINATES ALL GUESS WORK.

Patients have the benefit of the X-Ray in my office. We do not guess at your work. We make sure. The X-Ray discovers the hidden pus sacs. The X-Ray never lies.

Twenty-three years of dependability stand back of my guarantee—"If you are not satisfied, you do not have to pay." We use only the best of materials (S. S. White); those O. K'd by the U. S. Government. Procaine, which we have used for years, will make your dental work PAINLESS, pleasant and safe.

Do not delay. Call and be convinced that you can't buy better dentistry than that of the Anderson Dependable System of Dentistry.

We make a free examination of your teeth. If you do not heed dental work we tell you so—if your teeth need treatment we are frank to say so. You are given an estimate in advance—there is only one price—NO EXTRAS.

OUR PRICES ARE ONE-HALF WHAT OTHERS ASK WHO CAN APPROACH THE HIGH STANDARD OF ANDERSON DEPENDABLE QUALITY.

At the first concert this season Kajetan Mth, Bohemian horn virtuoso, will assist the chorus, a special arrangement of "Aida's Holiday" will be sung by the chorus to

PURE BREDS AID STOCK INDUSTRY

Meeting of Cattlemen to Better Standard of Live Stock

The initial meeting of the San Joaquin Valley Cattlemen's Live Stock Committee of the California Farm Bureau Federation was held yesterday at the offices of the farm advised in Fresno. The federation has but recently been formed, and is doing much toward the furtherance of the common aims of the forty-two farm bureaus of the state.

In accordance with the purposes of the organization, plans were laid for the improvement of the quality of livestock in California through the increase in number and quality of pure-bred animals. It was proposed that the state organization should require the various county farm bureaus of the state to take a census of their pure-bred sires in hogs, sheep and horses.

The committee also proposed that the various county farm bureaus get aside a month during which all farm centers should be addressed by livestock experts. At these same meetings it is planned to have stock judging demonstrations. It is thought that the talks will show the farmer the value he will receive through having pure-bred sires in his herd. At the judging, the first month would be devoted to cattle and the following monthly meetings would be devoted to judging horses, swine and sheep.

The following committeemen were present at the conference: Chairman J. W. Schultz of Modera county; Frank Jordan of Kings county; Geo. Peaver, Jr. representing the Fresno County Farm Bureau; and Prof. C. W. Ruhl of the University of California, assistant state leader of farm advisers.

PERMIT BOUGHT

Permit to operate an auto state line between Fresno and the town of North Park and the Pines in Modera county is sought from the Railroad Commission by the Telford & Robb Stage Line. It is claimed in the application that the petitioner recently purchased from J. F. Cockrill and George and Edward Thompson, their interest in the operating permit under which the route has been served.

Anna Kruse was appointed administratrix of the estate of Henry Kruse, deceased.

The court found for the plaintiff in the suit of Alex Brown against Mattie L. Brown, executrix of the will of Frank Brown. The action involved an undivided half interest in land located in sections 23-13-16.

CHICAGO, Nov. 22.—Buying of corn received a stimulus today from talk of export business at the seaboard and from attempts to anticipate market effects of a settlement of the coal strike. Coking prices were unsettled; grain rising. Corn advanced 1 cent to 90 cents to 13½¢ and May, 123½¢ to 126½¢. Oats gained, quotations for the week ending 75 cents to 80 cents, with December 71½¢ to 73 cents. In provisions the corn meal declined 10 cents to 20 cents advance.

Oats were ruled almost entirely by the action of corn.

EX-PATROLMAN SURRENDERS HIMSELF

Robert Shoun Charged With Extortion, Walks Into Police Station

Arraigned Police Court and Released Under $2,000 Bonds

Ex-Patrolman Robert Shoun, accused of extortion by Astor Misakian, a member of Orange avenue, for whose arrest a warrant was sworn out by Chief of Police Frank Truax, after Misakian had refused to swear out a complaint, walked into police headquarters yesterday afternoon and gave himself up as he had promised to do if wanted by the District Attorney's office or Chief Truax. Shoun was at once arraigned in the police court before Judge Judge Briggs and the bail bond fixed at $2,000. After this the accused ex-patrolman was released and the date of the preliminary hearing set for Monday afternoon before Judge Briggs, at which time Attorney E. A. Williams will probably waive examination in the lower court and Shoun will be held to answer in the superior court.

Shoun is understood to have left the city for his home in Canton, Ohio, and was recalled by a telegram from his brother, as the accused man had left before the complaint and warrant had been sworn out by Chief of Police Truax.

Close Enlistments for Oversea Service

Enlistments were closed yesterday for service in the Engineer and Infantry corps of the A. E. F. in France and Germany. Instructions to this effect were received by the local branch of the Army Recruiting office yesterday.

An attempt is now being made to open all branches of the service in Panama. It is expected, however, that the period will be short as there are many young Americans waiting their opportunity to see service in the famous peninsula.

Opening of enlistments in the Engineers corps for Railway service was also announced at recruiting headquarters yesterday.

TO HOLD DISCUSSION ON NEW HIGH SCHOOL

Public to Hear Plans at Meeting; J. O. Cross to Explain

The first public discussion of the plans of the new Fresno high school which is to be erected on the Sweet tract at a cost of $500,000, will take place tomorrow evening at the high school auditorium, following a meeting of the executive board of the Federation of Parent-Teachers Associations.

The executive board will meet at the high school auditorium at 7:30 o'clock, and an open meeting for the general public will follow at 8 o'clock in the auditorium. Members of parent-teacher associations, all teachers of schools and members of the public are invited to attend. The plans and drawings of the new high school will be shown by the architect, Messrs. Bates & Brown, and J. O. Cross, city superintendent of schools, will explain the buildings, and will answer questions in the discussion which will follow.

PAINTERS WILL RETURN TO WORK

Final Action of Employers Puts End to the Painters' Strike

Unanimous endorsement of the action taken by their executive board was voted at a meeting of the Building Industries Association yesterday afternoon putting a final end to the so-called painters' strike. By this action, the painters will return to work Monday morning.

By the terms of the compromise agreement reached by the executive board of each organization last week, the union men are to return at their former scale of $7.50 per diem until December 25, when they are to receive $5.50 per diem.

ISSUE PAVING BONDS

County Treasurer Ewing yesterday issued a series of eighty bonds in payment for the improvement of Plant avenue in the Altus Vista district. The bonds represent the unpaid assessments on the lot frontage of the improvement district. The bonds run for ten years, one-tenth of the principal becoming due and payable in 1920.

PLUMB PLAN TO BE LECTURE TOPIC

Congressman Dill Will Present Labor Questions

Believes Government Ownership Only Hope Now

Government ownership and operation of the railways in conjunction with the union, will be the subject of a lecture to be delivered by Congressman Clarence D. Dill, at the auditorium Monday night. Congressman Dill is an advocate of the Plumb Plan league, and is now on a lecture tour on its behalf.

In a similar wide campaign in the cause of the league, Dill is endeavoring to show to the people the benefits derived from government ownership. He announces that he speaks in the cause of the public as well as the railway employees, believing that all will be benefited from such an organization. It is his intention to bring before the public the view-point of all concerned with the movement, showing how it can be put through and operated after it is in the hands of the government and believes, that though the plan is somewhat revolutionary, it is the normal evolution which tends to bring capital and labor on an even standpoint.

Dill has served two years as congressman from Washington. He was elected on the labor ticket, and has been noted throughout his congressional career as a spokesman for the unions. He is a self-made man, having worked his way up through college, working as a street car conductor in Cleveland, Ohio. Later he was employed on one of the daily papers in that city, specializing in labor news. He has since been in contact with the labor movement, and has been a member of the Washington, and again his work tended towards the benefit of the working man, which culminated in his election to congress on a labor ticket.

The lecture, tomorrow, will be presented over by Philip F. Carline, editor of the Tri-County Labor News. The platform will be occupied by prominent labor citizens, and supporters of the labor movement. A large attendance is expected, as the Plumb Plan league is probably the biggest labor movement before the public at the present time.

CARLOAD ARMY FOOD ARRIVES

Sale to Start Tomorrow Morning at Auditorium at 9 o'clock

Part of a carload of government supplies were received yesterday by David Newman, who is in charge of the army food and clothing sale which will start at the Auditorium tomorrow morning. Immediate steps were taken by Newman to have the articles removed to the Auditorium, where they will be arranged today. The shipment consisted of the following articles: 162 cases corned beef; 50 crates bacon; 100 cases canned meat; 2 boxes harness. The lot upon which the goods are being sent here on trial and are accompanied by a demonstrator, Mr. Holloway, of the United States army. The gentleman will give demonstrations to the farmers on the value of the goods, which are of the latest style and of the best quality. If there is a demand for the goods more will be sent here.

Another shipment consisting of groceries, blankets and clothing will be sent during the coming week. They will be placed on sale upon receipt.

Tomorrow's sale will start at 9 a. m. and is to be held on the ground floor. The prices will be as previously announced.

Only Eight Pieces of Gold Collected in $1,500,000 Taxes

Scarcer than the proverbial hen's teeth are gold coins, the shiny yellow metal for which California is world famous, according to Ray Baker, county tax collector.

Although collector Baker has taken in nearly $1,500,000 during the present tax paying period, but eight gold pieces, having a face value of only $50, have been turned in by taxpayers. Before the war a goodly percentage of the small tax payments were made, at least partially, in gold. The daily statements of the coin and character of the money taken in disclosed the story yesterday. These tabulations showed that but two $20 gold pieces, two $10 coins and four $5 coins had found their way from the war-torn hoardings into the county treasury.

The experience of the tax collector's office is the most striking evidence locally of the quick transfer of the millions in gold to the national vaults in Washington during war days, when a gigantic gold reserve was built up by the government.

The exact total of tax collections for the present year was $1,440,650.53, while Friday's payments aggregated $35,443.32.

COMPLETE PLANS FOR SIX STORY HOSTELRY

Building Will Contain 100 Modern Rooms and Baths

Excavation of Basement to Start Tomorrow Morning

Partial alleviation of the crowded hotel conditions in Fresno is foreseen with the announcement that a new six-story reinforced concrete hotel is to be constructed on Van Ness avenue, between Kern and Mayo streets.

The building to be erected by Harry A. Arkellian of Tulare will cost between $175,000 and $200,000 exclusive of furnishings. It will be first class in every respect, according to the contractors, Pritchard Brothers of Fresno.

An innovation will be offered with special interest to traveling men. Sample rooms are to be placed on the roof and will be reached by means of a freight elevator. Besides these rooms, there will be 100 others, twenty to a floor. Each room will have an accompanying bath.

A picturesque lobby will be built, being finished in Italian Renaissance scheme. The floors will be tiled and the modern conveniences, including vacuum cleaning, steam heating and continuous hot, cold and ice water service are among the accommodations included in the plans.

The first of the building were drawn by Swartz and Lybrand. The lot upon which the hotel is to be built is 75 feet by 150 feet. Excavation preparatory to building the foundation is now in progress. When the contractors will have a full complement of men at work.

Arkellian had planned to erect a hotel on the site for a number of years, but the present emergency has made definite plans. He had at first ordered specifications drawn for the erection of a one-story building which would in the future be capable of handling an additional five stories, but due to the financial loss such a move would entail he decided to erect the six-story hotel at once.

The main floor front will contain a number of stores which will be added when a cafe is to be installed. It has not been definitely planned but it is thought that one will be necessary.

Kent for Senator Letters Received

The first postalized box of the 1920 election season to buzz in the political circles of Fresno is that of ex-Congressman William Kent, whose campaign to snatch the toga from Senator James C. Phelan is already well-under-way.

The candidate has made his first bid politically through the medium of personal letters and pamphlets. These were received within the past few days by a number of prominent Fresnoans, including members of the board of supervisors and county officials.

While too early to prophesy with any degree of certainty, it is understood that a committee of local Kent supporters will be formed shortly to denounce the candidacy of their man through the San Joaquin Valley. Mr. Kent, while an independent in politics, seeks the Republican nomination for the senatorship.

CATTLEMEN OF DISTRICT MEET

Hear Address Approving Kenyon-McKendrick Bill

May Start Co-operative Marketing in Cattle Industry

"Organization is the one salvation of the livestock industry," stated H. A. Jastro yesterday at the meeting of the Fourth Zone of the California Cattlemen's Association in explaining the urgent need of members to "pull together."

Jastro, who is a strong advocate of the Kenyon-McKendrick Bill for better government of the cattle industry, will put the packing industry under government control, stated that these two statements would not interfere with the greatest industry of their state, if the cattle men protect and benefit the thousands of cattlemen in their states and in other states accordingly.

Co-operative marketing was thoroughly discussed by the delegates present. Following the discussion, the emphasis of opinion was in favor of the project as it was believed that much better prices could be received by this method. Accordingly the California Farm Bureau Marketing Association may have a cattle department added to its organization.

It was decided at the meeting to wage a membership campaign in which at least 75 per cent of the states cattlemen would be brought into the movement.

An exceptionally interesting program was arranged. It consisted of a statement of Pres. J. W. Gulbreath, in review of the recent San Francisco convention of the State President L. A. Nares and the address by Jastro, who was formerly President of the American National Livestock Association and is at present chairman of the national committee.

The following directors were elected to membership on the Central Board for the ensuing year: C. B. Davis, Milam, Cal.; T. G. Stevens, Carson Hill, Cal.; H. K. Krohn, Concord, Cal.; L. A. Nares, Fresno; and A. S. Good, Bakersfield.

In the morning a lengthy session was held by the Fresno County Cattlemen's Association of California, at which much discussion was held over the co-operative marketing question. A board of five delegates were named to represent the two counties in the afternoon at the zone meeting.

TAG DAY DRIVE REAPS RESULTS

Subscription Cards Returns Are Coming in Now

One of the paramount activities of the Serbian relief drive was "Tag Day" yesterday, in which twenty-two known Fresno Indians participated. The drive was a first success, where the public wished to contribute by which the drive realized $400.00.

Mrs. C. H. Huntington, chairman of the "Tag Day" committee, considers that the work was a complete success and believes that an excellent response was given to this activity.

Other work which is going on for the benefit of the destitute children of northern France and Serbia is meeting with equal results, according to Mrs. L. L. Cory, chairman of the day committee. She states that the ladies soliciting donations at the exits of leading theaters are collecting nearly $100 a night, that clothing is coming in a very gratifying quantity, and that the first of the subscription cards mailed throughout the county a few days ago, are being returned in headquarters at room 22, First National bank building.

Among the local Serbians, the results are also beyond their expectations. Charles Jovanovich, a leading worker among the Serbians, states that $200 was collected through one day's campaign. He states that at the people require is to be asked, and they will give liberally. Mr. Jovanovich will be in conjunction with John Afencovich and William Curtis in the coming week soliciting business houses and Fresno county members. Through this work they expect to double the sum contributed up to date.

Mrs. Red Patterson and Mrs. W. J. Gilbert are in charge of the clothing end of the drive. Clothing is coming into their headquarters in the Auditorium at all hours of the day. They assure that clothing is the most important at present; money can be collected during the next two months, but clothing must be obtained now.

The future work of the relief committee will not be as strenuous as it has been in the past week. There are still some subscription cards to be sent out, also the clothing end of the drive in house-to-house soliciting, but the workers hope to be able to benefit from their activities. The

The trip in on Saturday was via the main road with a highly pleasant day trip in the Big Trees and up the way out a more than satisfactory vacation was made over the good roads which attract such a crowd. Greb Patch and Raymond met then down the Highway from Modern.

There is a scattering of dead leaves in the roads that make a little excitement at first, but in no way detract from the trip and all may look forward to a vista of changing leaves and the glory of the year in the Fall.

LABOR'S DUE SHARE IN CAPITAL MANAGEMENT

From November Bulletin, National City Bank of New York

On account of the general interest in this subject we give space to the following letter, and make reply as requested:

June 15, 1919.
The National City Bank of New York, New York City, N. Y.—Dear Sirs: Your issue entitled "Economic Conditions," under date "New York, June, 1919," on page 14, states that in 1914 the amount of capital in manufacturing within the United States amounted to $2,545,000,000. This when discussing labor conditions.

Has it never occurred to you that the "production cost" of the person employed is capital used in the business; this to the same extent as is capital invested in the business plant; and that the use of that capital is an absolute essential to the business?

If this be conceded, it is not reasonable that employees have contributed to, used in, the business of manufacturing a larger amount of capital than have those whose money has provided the industrial plant? That is, is it not reasonable that the average "production cost" of the employee has been in excess of $2,545?

Those engaged in a common business have usually exercised control of it in the ratio that their capital was used. Such being the custom, what good reason can be assigned for excluding the owners of the employees' "production cost" capital from a fair share; a share based upon the capital used in the business in which they are engaged, and to which their contribution of their capital-production cost is an absolute necessity.

And what good reason can be assigned for excluding the owner of the employees' capital so contributed and so used, from any benefit that is accorded to the owner of any capital that is otherwise contributed and so used?

I would be very much pleased if you could take this question shall be expressed in your next issue and a copy be mailed to me. Yours truly,
GEORGE W. TOWLE,
21 California street,
San Francisco, Cal.

We do not think the consideration of labor from the standpoint of production cost adds any higher or stronger claim than are usually recognized. The value of an individual in a given occupation is not related to his production cost, but to his ability and willingness to produce goods or services. Nobody ever hires a man on the basis of what his father has expended on him.

Capital in like manner is expended upon the basis of service rendered as we see by the fact that some investments pay more than others and many are unprofitable.

Practical Co-operation
Modern industry is essentially co-operative, in the sense that it is mutually helpful and dependent, based upon the division of labor.

The whole industrial organization works together on a gigantic scheme which has gradually and naturally developed. Each individual devotes himself to some one particular work and exchanges services for products with the others. The wage system is co-operative, the wage-earner contributing his labor and receiving a fixed wage, while the employer contributes the necessary capital and assumes the responsibilities and risks of conducting the business. Most of the criticism of the wage system is by people who have never had the responsibility of making a living, and here but a faint idea of the nature of conducting a business successfully.

Labor interest in industry is very prominent; it wants the largest possible portion and a certain one. The entire business world, including employers and employees, is in a state of ferment. It has little use for the labor except as they are supplied by capital, but it is always ready to pay more and to receive more for the services of the labor. If the business world had found in the result of co-operation the best way of increasing productivity in industry, it would have had all the employees participate in the management. The industry would have been divided into the hands of the labor and the capital, and the labor would have been the owner of the business.

"Co-operative industry," in the sense that all the workers share alike in the management and profits, has been tried, but as a rule has not been successful. The workers usually like it no better than employers, because it does not produce satisfactory results. And the primary reason why it does not produce satisfactory results, put in homely phrase, is that too many cooks will spoil the broth. The same consistency, continuity and efficiency of management cannot be had from the councils of many as from the councils of a few. Even if all the members of a given company may be called equals in point of intellectual ability, a large company or community in which all have an equal say is notoriously less efficient than a small group. It was not until one man was put in charge of the Allied armies in the great war that those forces became really effective. There must be a directing head vested with authority in order that any business may be a success. In competition with rivals thus managed co-operative undertakings in which everybody is a proprietor and the business is run by committees usually fail. It is a practical test from which there is no appeal.

developed, and this is the natural course of progress. Success is likely to be gained more readily by the man by the interference of any authority. Any plan imposed by the government or by any such body as the Industrial Commission, would represent the theory of a small group who originated it. Nothing of the kind that is imposed upon industry from the outside can be as adaptable for successful as the methods which are spontaneously developed in the practical operations of industry. The degree and method of co-operation must be adaptable to different industries and different conditions.

The whole problem is one to be worked out by experiment and demonstration. The results will not be the same in all cases. Where the employees are wisely represented and enter cordially into the program of making an industry more efficient and more prosperous the results will be beneficial to all parties. On the other hand, if the representatives of the employees use the information and advantages that are connected to co-operate in industry to the extent of putting authority into the hands of a few selecting the most competent. That kind of co-operation exists now in the joint stock corporation, and it appears that under conditions that are necessary to its success.

The difference between the co-operation which is exhibited in the joint stock corporation, and that contemplated by our correspondent is that the former merely participant must have some permanent stake in the business. He must have an investment in it which is a guaranty that he is interested in its lasting success and that he will not sacrifice the future for an immediate gain. Would our correspondent claim that an employee who denied himself the pleasure of personal expenditures this year in order that he might contribute to the purchase of machinery that would add to the productivity of the plant in the future was entitled to no more voice in the management of the business than the employee who declined to contribute anything to the fixed plant, or commit himself in any respect to the business in the future, and held himself free to quit on any day when he might think the prospects were better elsewhere?

Risks of Business.
The Bureau of Education of the United States Government is issuing a series of "leaflets" upon economics, for use in the public schools, and "Community" Leaflet No. 22, for the instruction of high school pupils, contains a brief statement of the risks of capital in industry which may be quoted in this connection. It says:

Two further sources of risk may be mentioned. The risk of capital invested in business is at their greatest when a large amount must be put in fixed capital, such as machinery, railroads, and permanent buildings. In some business billions of dollars must be spent and years of time must elapse before a single bit of product is made. In our rapidly changing society it is quite possible that a large part of this investment and expenditure of time and effort may have been wasted. Wages may have changed; new processes may have been invented.

Then, too, our society is so interdependent that a business man may have heavy losses because of happenings over which he had no control, and indeed concerning which he may not have known. For example, when the present great war began in Europe, the price of cotton declined, and many planters and merchants in the South failed in business; that is to say, they could not pay their bills. Their creditors, instead of looking for payment from which they had borrowed and merchants from whom they had bought goods, were in some cases forced into bankruptcy also. These creditors had still other creditors, and there, spread over the South and over the North, a condition where banks, farmers, and merchants were affected by the fall in the price of cotton.

Cannot Have It Both Ways.

It is very wise to say that "you cannot eat your cake and have it too," or as they say in England, "you cannot have it both ways." The workman cannot at the same time exercise the authority of a proprietor and also be free of all responsibility and risk in the outcome of the business. Somebody makes a large investment to carry on a modern industry. That is a pledge to the workmen that he intends to carry on the business "per se" and upon the common, prevailing conditions as affecting labor. He cannot with promise more, and he would be foolish to make the investment if he did not expect to do this. He may fail, and the workmen may be thrown out of employment, but in that event he has sunk his capital in the effort and there is every reason to believe that he has done his best to keep going. He furnishes the equipment, which represents labor done in the past, assumes the responsibility of paying fixed wages, and takes the risks of loss against the chances of profit. If he wants to use more capital than his own, as is usually the case, he enters in to the same kind of bargain for that as he does for labor—agreeing to pay a fixed return, which the lender accepts without asking for any value in the management. Authority and responsibility go together. When any party to the undertaking insists upon a guaranteed return he necessarily concedes some compensatory condition to the guarantor, and naturally it is that the latter shall have, if not the full say, at least the chief say in the management of the business.

Labor's Voice in Management

We do not say that labor should not have representation in the management. We understand the position of labor generally to be that it does not ask for representation in determining the general policies, but only upon the conditions which directly surround the employment. The proposition is thus limited. It is comparatively simple, but our correspondent apparently does not understand it.

We would say that there can be no hard and fast rule about the representation of labor in the management. It is not a question to be settled by theoretical arguments, but by the test of results. Any scheme under which business is successfully run will be worthless in labor. Every such device is a failure unless production is at least as large as it was before that device was adopted, for production falls off labor will get less and it is too practical to sacrifice real benefits. The main thing for labor is to get ahead, as best it can—getting better homes, better education, more comforts, more experience, more knowledge, co-operating with the system which produces these day by day results, and being assured that gains of this kind lead to everything else. The organization of society changes continually, but gradually, with the development of its individual members. Nothing can stop this natural evolution. It is a great merit of the system that it is a developing system, not stereotyped or fixed.

The Problem One for Free Employment

The difference between the co-operation which is exhibited in the joint stock corporation, and that contemplated by our correspondent is that the former merely participant must have some permanent stake in the business. He must have an investment in it which is a guaranty that he is interested in its lasting success and that he will not sacrifice the future for an immediate gain. Would our correspondent claim that an employee who denied himself the pleasure of personal expenditures this year in order that he might contribute to the purchase of machinery that would add to the productivity of the plant in the future was entitled to no more voice in the management of the business than the employee who declined to contribute anything to the fixed plant, or commit himself in any respect to the business in the future, and held himself free to quit on any day when he might think the prospects were better elsewhere?

Risks of Business.
The Bureau of Education of the United States Government is issuing a series of "leaflets" upon economics, for use in the public schools, and "Community" Leaflet No. 22, for the instruction of high school pupils, contains a brief statement of the risks of capital in industry which may be quoted in this connection. It says:

Two further sources of risk may be mentioned. The risk of capital invested in business is at their greatest when a large amount must be put in fixed capital, such as machinery, railroads, and permanent buildings. In some business billions of dollars must be spent and years of time must elapse before a single bit of product is made. In our rapidly changing society it is quite possible that a large part of this investment and expenditure of time and effort may have been wasted. Wages may have changed; new processes may have been invented.

Then, too, our society is so interdependent that a business man may have heavy losses because of happenings over which he had no control, and indeed concerning which he may not have known. For example, when the present great war began in Europe, the price of cotton declined, and many planters and merchants in the South failed in business; that is to say, they could not pay their bills. Their creditors, instead of looking for payment from which they had borrowed and merchants from whom they had bought goods, were in some cases forced into bankruptcy also. These creditors had still other creditors, and there, spread over the South and over the North, a condition where banks, farmers, and merchants were affected by the fall in the price of cotton.

Cannot Have It Both Ways.

It is very wise to say that "you cannot eat your cake and have it too," or as they say in England, "you cannot have it both ways." The workman cannot at the same time exercise the authority of a proprietor and also be free of all responsibility and risk in the outcome of the business. Somebody makes a large investment to carry on a modern industry. That is a pledge to the workmen that he intends to carry on the business "per se" and upon the common, prevailing conditions as affecting labor. He cannot with promise more, and he would be foolish to make the investment if he did not expect to do this. He may fail, and the workmen may be thrown out of employment, but in that event he has sunk his capital in the effort and there is every reason to believe that he has done his best to keep going. He furnishes the equipment, which represents labor done in the past, assumes the responsibility of paying fixed wages, and takes the risks of loss against the chances of profit. If he wants to use more capital than his own, as is usually the case, he enters in to the same kind of bargain for that as he does for labor—agreeing to pay a fixed return, which the lender accepts without asking for any value in the management. Authority and responsibility go together. When any party to the undertaking insists upon a guaranteed return he necessarily concedes some compensatory condition to the guarantor, and naturally it is that the latter shall have, if not the full say, at least the chief say in the management of the business.

Labor's Voice in Management

We do not say that labor should not have representation in the management. We understand the position of labor generally to be that it does not ask for representation in determining the general policies, but only upon the conditions which directly surround the employment. The proposition is thus limited. It is comparatively simple, but our correspondent apparently does not understand it.

We would say that there can be no hard and fast rule about the representation of labor in the management. It is not a question to be settled by theoretical arguments, but by the test of results. Any scheme under which business is successfully run will be worthless in labor. Every such device is a failure unless production is at least as large as it was before that device was adopted, for production falls off labor will get less and it is too practical to sacrifice real benefits. The main thing for labor is to get ahead, as best it can—getting better homes, better education, more comforts, more experience, more knowledge, co-operating with the system which produces these day by day results, and being assured that gains of this kind lead to everything else. The organization of society changes continually, but gradually, with the development of its individual members. Nothing can stop this natural evolution. It is a great merit of the system that it is a developing system, not stereotyped or fixed.

The Problem One for Free Employment

Thousands of members are studying this problem of how to increase industrial efficiency by enlisting more interested co-operation on the part of their employees. A great many plans are being tried and de-

THE FRANKLIN SEDAN

There is one fine enclosed car whose satisfactory performance does not depend on the addition of accessories, even when touring from three to four hundred miles a day.

The Franklin Sedan doesn't need cooling parts—cuts out annoyance and shock absorbers because it is built to expense, and permits all year motoring, ride comfortably without them.

It does not carry spare tires, unless its tires be run well over 10,000 miles, because it doesn't pound tires out or make its owner tire conscious.

It uses no thermometers because it carries no water to boil in summer.

Non-freezing mixtures are noticeably absent in winter because of no water to freeze.

Franklin Light Weight and Flexible construction, the basic principles of riding comfort, safe, easy driving, tire economy, and low fuel consumption, require no assistance from accessories.

Franklin Direct Air Cooling (no water to boil or freeze), by eliminating the factor of temperature from motoring, the doctoring of fifty pounds of water, and the trouble of 177 unrequired water

That the Franklin Sedan is exceptional in every way is conclusively proved by its nation-wide delivery to its owners of:

20 miles to the gallon of gasoline.
14500 miles to the set of tires.
50 per cent slower yearly depreciation.

To its unequalled performance it adds these exclusive features of sedan design: Wide Observation Windows giving unobstructed outlook; two Wide Doors extending this view and making access easy; the V-shaped Slanting Windshield, allowing broad driving vision and perfect ventilation.

Before coming to investigate Franklin performance make a note of the things you would like to eliminate from your list of motoring troubles and limitations, and then see if the Franklin car meets your requirements.

BUILDING A $5,000,000 ELECTRIC POWER PLANT

Race Against Time To Satisfy Valley's Rapidly Growing Development Needs—How Huge Kerchhoff Project of San Joaquin Light and Power Corporation Is Being Rushed to Completion by Remarkable Engineering Feats

By REX C. STARR

Construction Engineer, San Joaquin Light and Power Corporation

Early in the spring of 1919 the San Joaquin Light & Power Corporation decided, on account of the increased demand for power in the San Joaquin Valley, that an additional hydro-electric project must be built at the earliest possible date. Surveys were immediately started on what is now known as the Kerchhoff Lower Plant, near Auberry, California. This plant will use the entire flow of the San Joaquin river during approximately six months of the year.

The project as designed consists of a dam 110 feet high across the San Joaquin river at a point approximately four miles northwest of Auberry. At this point the San Joaquin River will be diverted through a tunnel 17 feet wide and 17 feet high, a distance of 17,000 feet to the forebay, located approximately three miles west of Auberry, from which point the water will be carried through three steel penstocks 3 feet in diameter, tapering to 7 feet in the power house, to the turbines. Turbines of 15,000 H. P. capacity each.

Long Tunnel Determining Factor.
The longest tunnel is approximately 5350 feet in length, and cuts off a long bend in the San Joaquin River, approximately four miles in length. The time required to complete this project is dependent upon the length of time required to drive the long tunnel, and for this reason every effort has been made to speed up the work in this tunnel. With this in view several different methods of tunnel driving have been attempted, which will be explained in detail later.

Authority to proceed with the construction work for this development was given April 25, 1919, and fifteen days later blasting drills were at work at the dam site to determine the depth of overburden for the dam. Fifteen borings were made with the diamond drill, the longest being 100 feet to 105 feet in depth, and the cores showed a remarkably uniform gravel, with an occasional small stringer of quartz. Surface indications of a shallow channel at this point were proven subsequently by the drill records.

While the diamond drill was being transported overland on skids to the dam site, work was commenced on the road which extends four miles northwesterly from Auberry to a point 100 feet in elevation and 500 feet in horizontal distance from the dam site, at which point an electric hoist was installed and an incline constructed to the dam site, with a maximum grade of 92.5 per cent.

All Work Rushed.
The work of building the wagon road from Auberry was rushed in every possible way. 62 head of stock being used, and gasoline driven portable compressors for all air drill work along the road.

By the 30 of May the incline railway to the dam site had been completed and placed in operation. The camp at the dam site was started at the same time that the road work was begun, and material for 100 men, including camp outfit, was transported over a trail on skids and lowered down a skidway, so that by the time the incline was in operation, considerable work had been done at the dam.

The first work attempted at the dam site consisted of the installation of two cableways of approximately 500 feet span and a capacity of 20 tons each. These cableways were used for transporting material from the incline railway to the dam site, and more especially to the Madera side of the San Joaquin River, where an immense gravel pit was necessary to remove before any other work could be done at the dam site.

Transport Steam Shovel on Cable.
With this in view, the cableways were rushed to completion, and a revolving steam shovel was taken across on the cableways and excavation of the gravel bar commenced on July 28. Immediately below the dam site a fall in the river of approximately 8 feet made it possible, by excavating a cut approximately 30 feet wide and 250 feet long, to divert the entire flow of the San Joaquin River through a flume and in this way water, the river bed and make the construction of the center portion of the dam, easy of accomplishment. The general scheme followed was first to excavate in the gravel bar for the foundations for the Madera side of the dam, pouring concrete for approximately one-third of the entire width of the base on this side, and diverting the river through openings left in this portion of the dam, from which openings a wooden flume 30 feet in width was extended downstream approximately 250 feet to a point below the falls.

Foundation of Dam.
The first cut at the site through the boulders and gravel indicated that the gravel bar consisted of large boulders intermingled with a white silt, which proved an effective barrier to excessive infiltration of river water. The location of the dam was such that the upper part of the gravel bar was left in place, and by building on top of this a crib foundation for the first part of the foundations, no difficulty was encountered with leakage.

The first concrete work on the dam was started on August 10th, and the completion of the Madera portion of the foundations was effected on August 27th. The wooden flume was completed and the entire flow of the San Joaquin river diverted through this portion of the dam on September 6th. A cut-off dam of 10x10 timbers and 1x4 tongue and groove sheet piling, fitted with sand bags, was built across the main river channel. Steam shovels excavated the balance of the foundations, and the river section of the dam was formed

Views of Power Works
Upper Left—View from the Madera county side, looking down on the dam, showing the form of the big structure and the difficult conditions under which construction is being carried on. The difficulty of carrying a camp on the precipitous hillside is shown by the 24 foot supports necessary to hold the houses up. The lower of the two railroads is used in hauling crushed rock to the concrete mixer. Such rapid progress is being made it is expected to have the dam fully completed by December 15.

Upper Right—View of the power house site, lower down on the Fresno county side of the San Joaquin River. The excavations for the buildings and the pipe line had to be blasted from the solid granite sides of the canyon. The end of the incline railway is shown on the right. This railway will run into the completed power house. The operators' cottages will be erected on the top of the hill and the men will be transported to and from the power house, when completed, by the incline which will be automatically operated, similar to an elevator. The rock pile in the upper right hand side of the picture is the dumping from the lower end of the tunnel line. The three eight foot pipe lines will be laid down this point on side and will come into the power house through tunnels. This water will drop a vertical distance of 350 feet.

Center—Interior view of one of the five tunnel faces. This shows the set-up for operating in the tunnel. The big steam shovel is shown in the act of loading a truck car which will later be drawn to the dump pile by a 5-ton electric locomotive. The tunnel line is 17 feet by 17 feet in dimensions and the intensity of this huge waterway can only be realized by comparison with the human figures shown at work in the tunnel. The track upon which the steam shovel rests is standard railway gauge. This tunnel line is through solid granite mountains and will have a carrying capacity of 1,500 second feet. Work is being rushed in three eight-hour shifts in all five faces. An average of about 12 feet a day is being made in each of the five faces.

Lower Right—View from the Madera county side of the San Joaquin River looking upstream showing the big dam, the inclined railway and camp. The flume in the left foreground is carrying the full stream of the San Joaquin River. When the dam is completed the water will be shown in contrast with the workmen on the upper part. There is a gasoline engine and two railroad tracks on the top for use in pouring concrete. This dam will hold back the river. The dam is 110 feet in height and almost 50 feet wide at the base. It is 400 feet long on the top and when completed will be about 12 feet in width. The large

For and By Business Girls

By Mary King

MAKING CHRISTMAS GIFTS.

EVERY year at about this time the business girl is in need of a word of warning against over-exercising her strength and energy in preparing gifts for her friends and relatives for Christmas. This year especially the warning is needed, as the enormous increase in the cost of almost all commodities and the scarcity of merchandise will be a temptation to many girls to indulge in fancy work and make by hand the gifts they intend to give for Christmas.

Sewing, embroidery, and crocheting in spare moments throughout the day are not harmful if the work does not become tiresome. The danger is in trying to accomplish more than one can do in the few weeks before the holidays, and as a consequence working at top speed all the time and staying up late night after night in an effort to finish things on time.

I am reminded of a letter that came from a business girl about four years ago. It was written a few weeks before Christmas and contained the writer's experience of the previous year. It was sent in the hope that other girls might be saved the misery and expense that befell her.

Toward the latter part of October she had made up her Christmas list and as it was a long one and she hadn't been able to save a great deal of money during the year she decided that her gifts would be cheaper and more highly appreciated if she made them herself.

She was an accomplished needlewoman and quite clever at painting on china, but she planned so much work for herself that every spare moment of the day and many hours of the night were spent in knitting, sewing, painting, etc. She knitted in the cars going to and from the office, sewed all during her lunch period, and often went without luncheon to do it, and night after night for four or five weeks before Christmas she sat at her gaiter until she was hardly able to move from sleepiness and the close application to her work.

She finished everything that she started out to do, but she nearly killed herself in doing it. Her gifts when finished were beautiful, but they gave her little satisfaction, for by Christmas day she realized that she had paid too great a price. She had given her precious health for them.

Christmas found her in bed. A day or two later, when she was still too weak to get up, she called a doctor. She was on the verge of a nervous breakdown. She spent six weeks in bed and was unable to work for three months. It took her nearly a year to save enough money to pay her doctor and hospital bills.

No business girl can afford to risk losing her health by overworking during the exciting days preceding the holidays. If pretty, ready-made gifts are too expensive or too scarce to buy this year, the sensible girl will cut down her list or give no presents at all.

The woman who will do her shopping early to save her own strength. The considerate woman will also make an effort to get her shopping done early in order to do her part toward lightening the burden for the worn out store clerks during the last few mad days before Christmas.

Real Love Stories

A FAIR EXCHANGE.

Bob and I lived next door to each other, and all our lives had loved and quarreled the way children will. Since we grew up, Bob firmly believed that his love was not the "brotherly" sort, as I tried to convince him it was.

When war was declared, Bob went overseas after obtaining his commission in the first school. Before he left we had a long, serious discussion, and I tried my best to make him see that it would be more sensible for us to wait until he returned before we decided things definitely, hoping that he would himself see things in a different light by that time, for I could not hurt big old Bob.

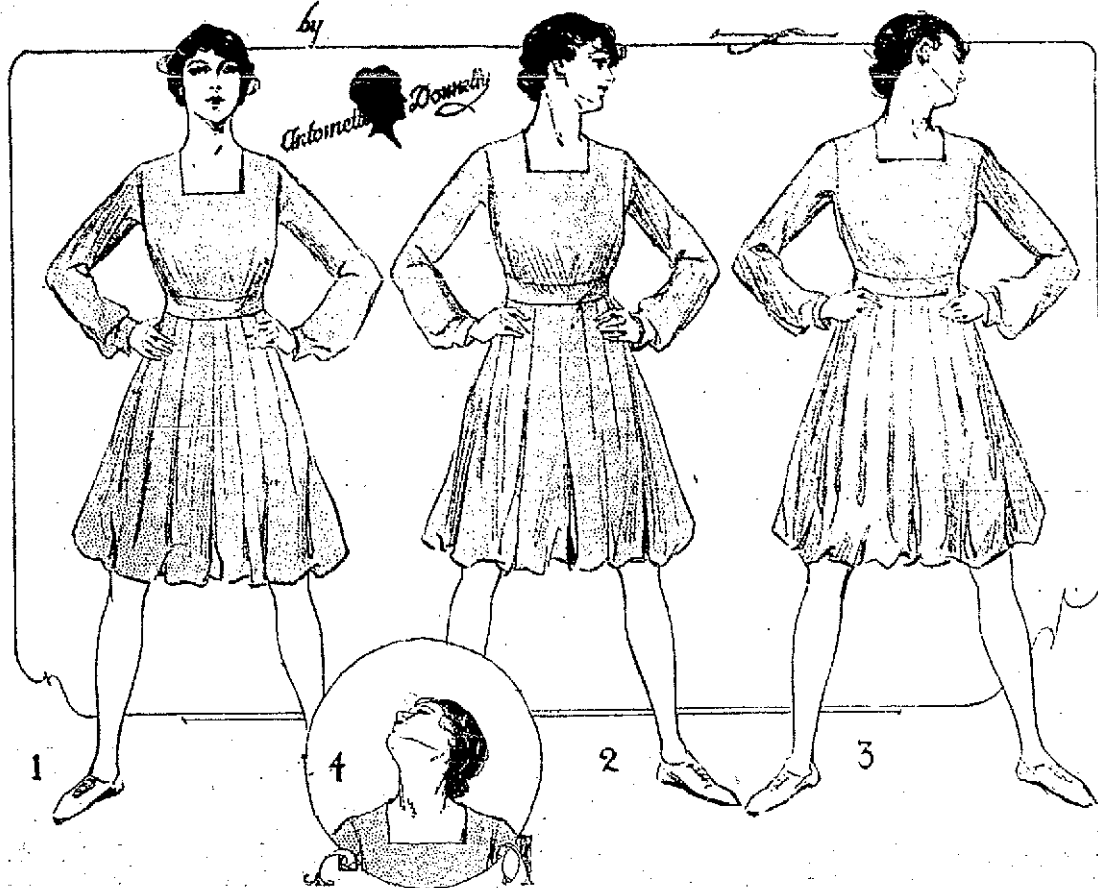

He wrote frequently, and I did my utmost to keep him gay and cheerful. The first few months he attended a French artillery school, and although he was anxious to get to the front, he enjoyed this work immensely. Col. Duprez, who was in command, seemed to think a great deal of Bob, and I knew that Bob liked him.

The colonel lived a few miles out from town, and he frequently took some of the officers from the school home with him for the week end, or just for dinner. Bob seemed to be a privileged character, for seldom was he left out of the party. I have detailed accounts of all of those visits; first they were general, but after a couple of months, Mlle. Jeanne-Marie came home for a rest from her nursing school, and she was the only and much adored daughter. He had one son, an officer in the French army.

As time went on, I could tell that poor old Bob was quite beside himself. He was desperately in love with Mlle. Jeanne-Marie, and I thought, much afraid to tell him, I immediately wrote him and told him what I really saw. The return letter was a confession, and soon after that another came, which told me of the engagement.

Last December Bob and his wife arrived in this country, and I found that Jeanne-Marie was every bit as adorable as Bob had painted her. Her brother, whom she had not seen for two years, had been one of the mission of allied instructors here, and had not yet returned to France. He came to visit her in January—that was when I met him. He returned to France to attend to his affairs, he is coming back to get me, and we are never, never going to be separated. And now I love Bob and Jeanne-Marie more than ever, because they are the brother and sister of my gay and handsome Paul.

PHYSICAL CORRECTIVE COURSE

If you are fat, here's your chance to reduce. If you are thin and crave more covering for your bones, again here is your chance. If you are at the dangerous age, when the figure of youth threatens to take on middle age proportions, it is your big chance, too. Or, if you are still young and want to remain so for years to come, you, too, are welcome to this particular opportunity which I am presenting my readers with this issue.

Realizing the need from the constant request from readers for exercises for reducing the waist, the hips, the double chin, the fat between shoulders, and from readers of the extremely "opposite" sex, those asking for exercise aid in rounding out waist, hips, shoulders, neck, and so on, and for those who just want to stay fit, I put myself in the hands of one of the best gymnasium instructors in the country, from whose years of experience I have gathered for you the cream of physical corrective work, and beginning with today's issue will present you the opportunity of getting free a complete course.

None of the exercises will require mechanical apparatus. They are of a nature that every woman and girl may easily do to the home. In other words, you will have the chance in following this course as I present it to you of attending an expensive physical education school without the inconvenience of having to go out of the home to get it.

All one has to do to produce an argument for physical exercise and the corrective power of the right kind of exercise is to think back on the remarkable change it made in your soldier brother, or cousin, or male acquaintance when he received his army training.

Without more ado as to the why of exercise, which every intelligent woman when she thinks intelligently understands, we will proceed with our first lesson.

Now, in this course we are going to begin with the head, neck, chin, and shoulders and work our way down to feet corrective work.

The first thing naturally will be to get a good position, to know how to stand, for when you think it over you can readily see how much corrective work may be done with this knowledge alone. For instance, you can make your stomach look smaller when you stand erect, you can in a sense straighten out a rounding back, and likewise you can make a sagging chest appear to have more girth and the neck hollows look less hollow by a good standing position.

So, we will start with it: Head up, heels together, knees straight but without stiffness, body erect, abdomen flat, chest high, and shoulders square and easy. (Not raised or shoved back, remember!) the back flat, arms straight down at the sides, wrists and fingers straight in line with the arms, palms of hands in, fingers together with thumb close.

Holding this position at first will give you a "stretched-out," strained feeling. Relax and do it over several times.

Then we will take this position, with a change of the hands brought on the hips and the feet to a stride (about two foot lengths apart), as in illustration No. 1. The stride position gives a balance. Then we are ready for the head twisting exercise, which is excellent for reducing double chin or protruding one and at the same time developing the cervicospinal muscles.

Also, this exercise brings into play besides the neck muscles the muscles at the back of the neck, and is recommended particularly for the woman who is developing an "old lady's hump" back there. It might be incidentally remarked that many young women have this fatty accumulation there, due to improper standing and sitting positions.

Now, get correct position of the body with head up, eyes straight ahead; then turn head sharply to the right, as in illustration 2, without moving the body. Turn it with a quick smart jerk, then back with quick precision to this three times. Then turn the head to the left and left for enough to feel a stretching in the neck muscles.

Then, as in illustration 3, in same standing position, first turn the head sideward, as in illustration 2, then with another sharp movement from that position give the head a sideward back stretch. With this movement you can feel plainly the neck muscles in play. Repeat right and left three times at first, gradually increasing to five or ten.

As a matter of fact, an exercise to have any value must be done with "zip" and energy. Do these head exercises as if you meant them and they will show you what they mean to you.

Now, just one more exercise for today's lesson. Stand easily and let your head and neck muscles relax, begin rolling the head around as if it were a dead weight, rolling it forward on the chin around the shoulder, the back of the neck as far back as you can roll it, as in illustration 4, around the other shoulder and back on chest girdle. Keep eyes closed to prevent dizziness. Do this just a couple of times at first. But feel a stretch in the neck muscles all around.

BEAUTY ANSWERS.

RITA H. FOR TIME ENLARGED nose pores patience and a religious devotion to the cause of reducing them are necessary. Scrub the nose well at night with warm water and soap and a camel's hair brush. Rinse in clear warm water, then in cold as you can stand. Then apply ice wrapped in a thin bit of cheesecloth. Ice is an excellent astringent. Or witch hazel, if you can not get the ice. But be consistent in your effort. Expect no results unless you follow my instructions once a day and look for quicker results if you do it morning as well as night.

E. B. L. DO NOT STEAM YOUR face every day. I don't believe in steaming the skin often. Once a week is as often as it should be done and then only when great care is taken to close the pores perfectly and thoroughly. This you must do by applying cold water or, better still, an ice rub. For the oily condition of the skin keep on hand some tiny balls of absorbent cotton and a bottle of alcohol and during the day rub the skin with the clean cotton dipped in the alcohol. Witch hazel is an astringent which you may use instead of the alcohol, if you prefer. Then you would better use a greaseless cream. I have a formula for one which I shall gladly send you in return for a stamped addressed envelope.

KAY: NO, HOUSEWORK ISN'T A hard lot at all if you do not insist on making it such. Many a woman has discovered since the high cost of malleable work that life has taken on a healthier viewpoint for them. And that's not just "talk," either. The bodily exercise involved in sweeping, dusting, with its bending and stretching movements, making beds, and general moving around will keep you young and happy. And the hand troubles you complain particularly about are preventive and easily remedied. Send me a stamped addressed envelope and let me mail you detailed instructions on their cure.

DAILY READER: NOT TOO LONG at all. Ask as many more questions as you please. About the blackheads, an occasional treatment is no use. You have to treat your affected nose like an appetite. Daily attention it must have or you are going to have more trouble. Not only washing the skin of the face is important, but there is the daily bathing as well, and there is hygienic food, for digestive disturbances often cause complexion ills. And outdoor life is a remedy which perhaps you never thought of as a blackhead remedy. If you want to prove how it clears the skin note its condition before you start for a three mile walk and a half hour or so after your return. You will see a difference. The moral, then, is obvious to you.

G. E. L. NINETEEN AND FIVE feet tall, what should you weigh? About 115 pounds. Vaseline on the eyelashes will make them grow; it will also make the eyebrows grow. But you must not expect them to "sprout" overnight. It takes time. It won't hurt the eyes if you are careful when applying it to the lashes. Otherwise, it will make them smart. I wish you would write me personally about the formula you had made up which affected your eyes. Have you the formula and was it made up by a reliable druggist?

ROSEBUD: DON'T LET YOUR sister take any internal reducing remedy, please. Instead, have her go in for athletics, basketball, and swimming—particularly, and school gymnasium work. Fourteen is an awkward age for most girls, especially for the fatty inclined. But she will outgrow that by the time she is 16 anyway. At this growing age no strenuous measures of diet are to be recommended. Neither is any form of reducing other than normal, healthy, outdoor life and exercise.

CELLAR GARDENS

BY FRANK RIDGWAY

Planting a winter vegetable garden is an interesting interest among gardeners. Few realize it is possible to have a continuous supply of some of the common vegetables during the cold months. This may be done with a heater in the cellar.

Rhubarb, cauliflower, asparagus and sea kale are among the vegetables that may be grown. Many will be able to die up most of these plants in their own gardens. However, forcing roots of these plants may be bought from gardeners or at the seed stores.

Rhubarb plants do well under forced conditions in the cellar. The old clumps are split, leaving one-half in the ground and forcing the other half. The best plan is to freeze the rhubarb roots before planting them in the cellar. Gardeners who force hundreds of these plants during the winter pile the roots in long rows out of doors where they are kept until frozen solid. They are kept frozen until used.

In forcing rhubarb the roots are planted close together in boxes of earth and watered freely. Too much water, however, is detrimental. They should be kept in a dark place. Rhubarb does not force well until after Christmas, but the roots must be provided before the ground freezes hard.

Asparagus can be forced in the cellar any time during the winter. The crowns should be at least three years old, and handled in the same way as rhubarb, but the roots need not be frozen or split before planting.

Cauliflower and sea kale are handled in the same way. Sea kale should be kept in the dark. Brussels sprouts that have not reached their full size may be due up, transplanted in boxes, and forced to harvesting size in the cellar. Leaf and other plants may be forced in the cellar garden.

Spice Nut Cake.
Cream one-half cup of butter and hard. Add gradually one cup of refined soft brown sugar, one-half cup of molasses, and the yolk of four eggs, beaten until thick, and lemon thick. Sift together two and one-fourth cups of bread flour, one-fourth teaspoon of salt, one teaspoon of soda, one-half teaspoon of baking powder, one and one-half teaspoons of cinnamon, one-fourth teaspoon each of cloves and nutmeg, one-half teaspoon of nutmeg. Sift dry ingredients twice and add one cup of saltine cracker meal, one and one-half cups of currants, and three-fourths cup of raisins broken in pieces. Mix thoroughly and add to first mixture with one cup of sour milk. Beat one minute and turn into well greased brick-shaped bread pans. Bottoms lined with two thicknesses of brown paper well greased and bake forty-five minutes in a moderate oven.

The following recipe for apple and white layer cake will dispense of the remaining whites of the four eggs.
Cream one-half cup of butter, add gradually one and one-fourth cups of fine granulated sugar, stirring constantly. Sift together one and seven-eighths cups of flour, three teaspoons of baking powder, and a few grains of salt; add to first mixture alternately with one-half cup of milk and one teaspoon of vanilla, one-half teaspoon each of lemon and vanilla is a pleasing combination. Beat batter thoroughly, then cut and fold in the stiffly beaten whites of four eggs. Bake in two well buttered and floured square layer cake pans fifteen minutes in a moderately hot oven. If the instructions given for measuring ingredients that precede my articles are strictly followed, together with these given in the recipes, there need be no failures even with the amateur in cooking.

Roast Venison.
Venison for a saddle should always be prepared at the market. If a leg of venison is used it is prepared and cooked the same as mutton. Have the bone removed from the leg, wipe, stuff if desired, truss, and place in a deep dripping pan. Sprinkle with salt and pepper, and dredge with flour. Roast in a hot oven, basting every fifteen minutes with melted butter; allow ten minutes for each pound of venison. Serve with currant jelly sauce.

Venison being a dry meat, it is always best to harden the entire inner surface of the roast with salt pork lardons. Venison is rarely ever stuffed and when it is perhaps chestnut stuffing is the most desirable.

To make this, cut a half inch cross on the flat side of one quart of large chestnuts. Put them into a shallow pan and allow one-half a teaspoon of butter or olive oil for each cup of chestnuts. Shake the pan over a low fire until each nut is well covered with the fat. Then place the pan in a moderate oven and let stand from five to eight minutes. Remove from the oven and "cut" a small sharp-pointed knife peel off the shells. By this method the shells and brown skins are removed at the same time. Cook the meats in boiling salted water until soft. Drain, mash, and press through a ricer. Season with one teaspoon of

Sweet Potato Pone.
Cream one cup of butter, add gradually one cup of light brown sugar (previously rolled) while stirring constantly; then add four cups of hot mashed and rice, sweet potatoes, sift in two tablespoons of ginger; add the grated rind and juice of one medium sized orange and one-fourth teaspoon of salt. Beat thoroughly, turn into a well buttered agate pan and bake in a moderate oven one hour. Serve hot with roast pork, goose, or opossum.

Current Jelly Sauce.
Melt three tablespoons of butter in a saucepan and cook until richly browned (but not burned); add four tablespoons of flour, and stir until smooth, and well browned. Add gradually one cup of brown stock and continue stirring until sauce is smooth and glossy. Season with one-fourth teaspoon of salt and a few grains of pepper. Whip one-half cup of currant jelly with a fork and add to brown sauce with one teaspoon of lemon juice. Let simmer gently five minutes. Serve with roast venison, mutton, or spring lamb.

long favored for small girls' afternoon wear—we get a pleasing amount of variability. Instead of being black or navy blue velvet, the bodice of this frock is dark green, with a green and tan check skirt supplants the familiar shepherd's plaid.

What is most unusual is the under-portion of plaid tan chiffon, used in place of the white china silk or muslin gumpie, which usually accompanies this kind of costume.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—And then the Fairy Prince came and slew the wicked eagle of Look-Just-Alike and they all lived happily ever after with violet and green and any color they liked. Thus might read the fairy tale of little girls' clothes, in which, of course, the children's designer gets the leading role. That even in the combination of velvet coat and checked woolen skirt—
